When you finish constructing your container measure and record the dimensions.

(Task 2)

The actual height of my container _____

The actual width of my container _____

The actual depth of my container _____

You may not test your design until all five containers are finished. You may help your team to finish.

Test your design:

When all members of your team have all five containers ready to test, place them in the testing station. Each container should hold close to the liquid volume unit of measurement. If your container is a cup, use only one cup of rice. If your container is a liter, use only one liter of rice.

Fill each container with rice. Record the results.

name:	Container was too big. There was lots of space at the top.	Container was too small. The rice overflowed.	Container filled to the top.	The container could not stay together and could not be measured.
