Mine Okubo Following Her Own Road:

Mine Okubo Greg Robinson, Elena Tajima Creef, 2018-07-01 To me life and art are one and the same for the key lies in one's knowledge of people and life In art one is trying to express it in the simplest imaginative way as in the art of past civilizations for beauty and truth are the only two things which live timeless and ageless Min Okubo This is the first book length critical examination of the life and work of Min Okubo 1912 2001 a pioneering Nisei artist writer and social activist who repeatedly defied conventional role expectations for women and for Japanese Americans over her seventy year career Okubo's landmark Citizen 13660 first published in 1946 is the first and arguably best known autobiographical narrative of the wartime Japanese American relocation and confinement experience Born in Riverside California Okubo was incarcerated by the U S government during World War II first at the Tanforan Assembly Center in California and later at the Topaz War Relocation Center in Utah There she taught art and directed the production of a literary and art magazine While in camp Okubo documented her confinement experience by making hundreds of paintings and pen and ink sketches These provided the material for Citizen 13660 Word of her talent spread to Fortune magazine which hired her as an illustrator Under the magazine's auspices she was able to leave the camp and relocate to New York City where she pursued her art over the next half century This lovely and inviting book lavishly illustrated with both color and halftone images many of which have never before been reproduced introduces readers to Okubo's oeuvre through a selection of her paintings drawings illustrations and writings from different periods of her life In addition it contains tributes and essays on Okubo's career and legacy by specialists in the fields of art history education women's studies literature American political history and ethnic studies essays that illuminate the importance of her contributions to American arts and letters Min Okubo expands the sparse critical literature on Asian American women as well as that on the Asian American experience in the eastern United States It also serves as an excellent companion to Citizen 13660 providing critical tools and background to place Okubo's work in its historical and literary contexts

After Camp Greg Robinson, 2012-02-07 The tragedy of incarceration has dominated historical studies of Japanese Americans and few have explored what happened in the years that followed A welcome addition to the literature Greg Robinson's insightful study After Camp will appeal to historians of immigration the Asian American experience comparative race relations and the twentieth century United States more broadly David K Yoo author of Growing Up Nisei Greg Robinson has boldly and rightfully identified historians neglect of Japanese American experiences after World War II Rather than focusing exclusively on the Pacific Coast After Camp offers a nuanced exploration of the competing strategies and ideas about postwar assimilation among ethnic Japanese on a truly national scale The depth and range of Robinson's research is impressive and After Camp convincingly moves beyond the tragedy of internment to explain how the drama of resettlement was equally if not more important in shaping the lives of contemporary Japanese Americans Allison Varzally author of Making a Non White America

Making Home from War Brian Komei Dempster, 2013-07-15 The sequel to the award winning From Our Side of the Fence personal stories of life after the WWII internment camps from twelve Japanese Americans Many books have chronicled the experience of Japanese Americans in the early days of World War II when over 120 000 persons of Japanese ancestry two thirds of whom were American citizens were taken from their homes along the West Coast and imprisoned in concentration camps When they were finally allowed to leave a new challenge faced them how do you resume a life so interrupted Written by twelve Japanese American elders who gathered regularly at the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Northern California Making Home from War is a collection of stories about their exodus from concentration camps into a world that in a few short years had drastically changed In order to survive they found the resilience they needed in the form of community and gathered reserves of strength from family and friends Through a spectrum of conflicting and rich emotions Making Home from War demonstrates the depth of human resolve and faith during a time of devastating upheaval I remember my release from Manzanar as scary and intense but until now so little has been said about this aspect of the internment experience This is an important book its stories ground breaking and memorable Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston author of Farewell to Manzanar A deeply moving accounting of life after imprisonment its lingering stigma and the true meaning of freedom Dr Satsuki Ina producer of Children of the Camps

An Eye for Injustice Jim Azumano, Daniel Sakura, Hanako Wakatsuki, 2021-06-22 As wartime hysteria mounted following the December 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor President Franklin D Roosevelt issued Executive Order 9066 and the U S government began forcibly relocating all West Coast individuals with Japanese ancestry to one of ten sites in inland states Totalling close to 120 000 the majority were American citizens The Minidoka War Relocation Center a newly constructed camp at Hunt Idaho first opened in August 1942 Most of its approximately 9 300 incarcerated came from Portland Seattle Tacoma and surrounding regions It was a painful experience with lasting repercussions Minidoka's last occupant left in October 1945 Dr Robert C Sims devoted nearly half his life to research writing and education related to the unjust World War II Japanese American incarceration Six of his previously published articles as well as selections from conference papers and speeches focus on topics such as Idaho Governor Chase Clark's role in the involuntary removal decision life in camp the impact of Japanese labor on Idaho's sugar beet and potato harvests the effects of loyalty questionnaires and more His impassioned yet still academic approach to Minidoka is an important addition to others published memoirs and photo collections In new essays contributors share insights into Sims' passion for social justice and how Minidoka became his platform along with information about the Robert C Sims Collection at Boise State University Finally the book recounts the thirty-five year effort to memorialize the Minidoka site Now part of the National Park System it highlights a national tragedy and the resilience of these victims of injustice

World War II Provided by publisher Amerasia Journal ,2004 Masking Selves, Making Subjects Associate Professor of English and Associate Professor of English Traise Yamamoto,1999-01-06 This sophisticated and comprehensive study is the first to situate Japanese American women s writing within theoretical contexts that provide a means of articulating the complex relationships between language and the body gender and agency nationalism and identity Through an examination of post World War II autobiographical writings fiction and poetry Traise Yamamoto argues that these writers have employed the trope of masking textually and psychologically as a strategy to create an alternative discursive practice and to protect the self as subject Yamamoto s range is broad and her interdisciplinary approach yields richly textured in depth readings of a number of genres including film and travel narrative Looking at how the West has sexualized infantilized and feminized Japanese culture for over a century she examines contemporary Japanese American women s struggle with this orientalist fantasy Analyzing the various constraints and possibilities that these writers negotiate in order to articulate their differences she shows how masking serves as a self affirming discourse that dynamically interacts with mainstream culture s racial and sexual projections English Journal ,1948 The Engineer ,1897 The Far Eastern Review ,1905 Japan Gazette ,1877 The Pacific Monthly ,1910
