between children parents developers politicians and other actors with a stake in determining what how and where children s play unfolds Through an innovative transdisciplinary framework combining science and technology studies critical communication studies and children s cultural studies Digital Playgrounds focuses on the contents and contexts of actual technological artefacts as a necessary entry point for understanding the meanings and politics of children s digital play The discussion draws on several research studies on a wide range of digital playgrounds designed and marketed to children aged six to twelve years revealing how various problematic tendencies prevent most digital play spaces from effectively supporting children s culture rights and ironically play Digital Playgrounds lays the groundwork for a critical reconsideration of how existing approaches might be used in the development of new regulation as well as best practices for the industries involved in making children s digital play spaces In so doing it argues that children s online play spaces be reimagined as a crucial new form of public sphere in which children s rights and digital citizenship must be prioritized
