Alternator Operation

With reference to Figure 2.

When the key start switch is turned on a small current flows from the battery through the rotor field winding. The circuit is made via the charge indicator warning lamp, alternator terminal 'D+' the rotor field winding, the alternator regulator and ground.

At this stage the warning light is illuminated and the rotor partially magnetised.

When the engine is started and the partially magnetised rotor revolves within the stator windings a 3-phase alternating current is generated. A constant portion of the generated current is converted to direct current by the three field diodes incorporated in the rectifier pack.

A008 Grid Heater Module (not fitted)

This direct current is fed back to supplement the current flowing through the rotor field winding.

This action results in an ever increasing magnetic influence of the rotor along with an associated rapid rise in generated output current and voltage.

During the rise in generated output voltage (reflected at the 'D+' terminal) the brilliance of the warning lamp is reduced and when the voltage at the 'D+' terminal equates to that at the battery side of the warning light the lamp is extinguished.

The voltage continues to rise until the predetermined regulated voltage level is reached.

In the event of drive belt breakage the voltage will not build up within the alternator and so the charge indicator light will remain on to indicate failure.
