Cost-effective and Sustainable Road Slope Stabilization and Erosion Control Laura Fay, Michelle Akin, Xianming Shi, National Cooperative Highway Research Program, 2012 In the United States it is estimated that 75 percent of all roads are low volume roads maintained by some 35 000 local agencies Low volume roads often omit surface slope protection and this can lead to slope failure erosion and maintenance safety and ecological issues This report presents information on cost effective and sustainable road slope stabilization techniques with a focus on shallow or near surface slope stabilization and related erosion control methods used on low volume roads To fully address this topic planning and site investigation are discussed as well as erosion control techniques soil bioengineering and biotechnical techniques mechanical stabilization and earthwork techniques Information presented in this report was obtained through an extensive literature review and from survey and interview responses From the survey responses 30 individuals were interviewed based on the information they made available in the survey A total of 25 interviews were conducted over the phone and in two cases written responses were received Preface Infrastructure Aesthetics Solveig Daugaard, Cecilie Ullerup Schmidt, Frederik Tygstrup, 2024-11-04 An upsurge in artworks negotiating the conditions of their own production distribution and reception has called attention to the infrastructural relations that shape the art world but have long been understudied In response this book introduces the concept of infrastructure aesthetics into the study of culture The concept is drawn from infrastructure studies media theory and aesthetic theory This volume develops it further addressing the analytical challenge of working with works that blur the boundaries between art and infrastructure both historically and in the present the aesthetic problem of assessing artistic forms that operate on an infrastructural level and the politics of artistic agency on a social level beyond the work s content or message As the relation between artworks and their institutional and social settings becomes infrastructural in nature we need to move beyond the reductive division of the study of artworks into production articulation and reception This book provides its readers with an innovative conceptual toolbox designed for precisely this task as well as a forceful set of exemplary case studies applying the concepts in theory and practice
