Huizink, Anette Christina Ekström-Bergström, 2023-11-28 Mental Health, Social Media, and the Meta Dov Greenbaum, Nazanin Alavi, 2024-11-11 One of the most damaging externalities from the recent pandemic has been the rise in mental health issues Many psychiatric disorders have strong genetic components and although the extent of the genetic influence for many conditions has been extensively tested by genome wide association studies GWAS there remains much to be understood regarding the genetics of these health issues Twin studies for example have found a relatively high rate of inheritance for depression and anxiety disorders To better appreciate the role that genetics plays in these disorders it is useful to understand the extent to which other factors also contribute to the condition Other major contributing factors to mental disorders are the environment and psychological factors These environmental and psychological concerns have been further exacerbated by the growth of social media and the requirement especially for young adults and teenagers to always be on It is likely that the metaverse in whatever form it ultimately takes will further exacerbate these conditions On the other hand social media and the metaverse can be tools to help those suffering from mental health conditions Online therapists and bots can provide frontline care to those who can't or won't go to an in person therapy session AI can be employed to provide some forms of therapy in light of the growing demand for licensed therapists and the limited supply Adolescence Mental Health in School and University Iman Permana, Herni Susanti, 2024-07-29 A school whether run by the government or a private institution is established to prepare adolescents for adulthood In some regions some religious societies have established a comprehensive educational institution supported by their religious competencies requirement in their curriculum along with the national curriculum Adolescence is a period of life that ranges from 10 to 19 years old and expands from school to the early phase of university Adolescents are considered highly susceptible to mental health issues Anxiety depression behavioral disorders and suicidal attempts have been shown to increase before the age of 24 There is a myriad of factors that can contribute to the development of mental health disorders in this context including family parenting style and bullying from peers teachers Failing to address contributing factors may hinder adolescents from fulfilling and sustaining healthy and productive adult lives Public Mental Health in Trauma and War Gülseren Keskin, Mahire Olcay Çam, Man Cheung Chung, 2025-02-06 People living in war zones are exposed to numerous stressors including physical harm psychological trauma loss deprivation bereavement or abuse In recent years there has been growing acceptance that war related stressors have the potential to pose a risk to health Epidemiological studies also reveal the health consequences associated with war and trauma and agree that post traumatic stress disorder and depression are common in war affected populations Since the turn of the last century there have also been changes in the conception of war Nowadays wars have evolved into a new form that can affect larger masses instead of hand to hand combat with cannons and rifles War is an artificial disaster and differs from the kind of natural pandemic disaster that affects the whole world Countless deaths forced abandonment of homes families friends and property and severe anxiety about war are experienced because of the war related conditions for millions of humans

As scientists or clinicians we all have an implicit theory about how the mind relates to the nervous system which infuses our research and practice This theory entails what has been traditionally known as the mind body problem Intrinsically connected to the question of potentials and constraints of human and conscious artificial life it still represents an open and highly debated philosophical and empirical question The common assumption for many cognitive neuropsychologists and neuropsychiatrists is that by looking at the anatomical brain function or malfunction it is possible to predict the behavioral experience of individuals This view often called reductionism has dominated the research trajectories in neuroscience and psychiatry in the past decades
