

40 Years of Engaging with the Arts

— Ralph Homers — CEO of ING

We live in an era of responsibility. Much is expected of ING, and rightly so. Our contribution to a healthy economy and stable society is our responsibility; but likewise, it is a privilege to be able to participate in that same society.

For ING, endorsing art has always been a crucial part of this contribution. To reflect that, we are celebrating the 40th anniversary of the collection with this catalogue. I hope you enjoy it.

There doesn't seem to be enough painting by Michael Rosen in my office. The painting shows people at a table enjoying their first time together. Looking at it, you can almost hear the swoon of people talking and feel the cool atmosphere. To me, this is like a warm blanket. Ralph Homers

The world has changed dramatically in the past 40 years, and art is an ideal medium through which to gain insight into changing contexts and times. John Lennon once said that his role as an artist was to try and express what we all feel – not to tell people how to feel. Neither to preach nor to lead, but instead to reflect us all. This catalogue can be viewed in the same way. Not only does it give an impression of ING's collection, but it also takes you on a journey through some of the most important themes that have shaped the world as we know it.

ING recently announced its new strategic direction: Think Forward – a direction that starts with our belief that all sustainable progress is driven by people with the imagination and determination to improve their future and the future of those around them. Art and change go hand in hand. For that reason, in our efforts to empower people to stay a step ahead in life and in business, ING will continue to engage with the arts in the years to come.

Socially Engaged Art after Socialism Izabel Galliera, 2017-05-30 Reclaiming public life from the ideologies of both communist regimes and neoliberalism their projects have harnessed the politically subversive potential of social relations based on trust reciprocity and solidarity Drawing on archival material and exclusive interviews in this book Izabel Galliera traces the development of socially engaged art from the early 1990s to the present in Bulgaria Hungary and Romania She demonstrates that in the early 1990s projects were primarily created for exhibitions organized and funded by the Soros Centers for Contemporary Art In the early 2000s prior to Bulgaria Hungary and Romania entering into the European Union EU institutions likewise funded socially conscious public art in the region Today socially engaged art is characterised by the proliferation of independent and often self funded artists initiatives in cities such as Sofia Bucharest and Budapest Focusing on the relationships between art social capital and civil society Galliera employs sociological and political theories to reveal that while social capital is generally considered a mechanism of exclusion in the West in post socialist contexts it has been leveraged by artists and curators as a vital means of communication and action
