Pfenninger, Julia Festman, David Singleton, 2023-05-05 Language fundamentally defines and distinguishes us as humans as members of society and as individuals As we go through life our relationship with language and with learning shifts and changes but it remains significant This book is an up to date resource for graduate students and researchers in second language L2 acquisition who are interested in language learning across the lifespan The main goal is to survey and evaluate what is known about the linguistic cognition affect associations that occur in L2 learning from birth through senescence passing through the stages of childhood adolescence adulthood and third age the extent to which L2 acquisition may be seen as contributing to healthy and active aging the impact of the development of personalized technology enhanced communicative L2 environments and how these phenomena are to be approached scientifically and methodologically The effects of certain specific variables such as gender socio economic background and bilingualism are also analyzed as we argue that chronological age does not determine the positioning of L2 learners across the lifespan age is part of a complex web of social distinctions such as psychological and individual factors that intersect in the construction of a learner s relative status and opportunities The Study of EFL Learners' Oral Language Development Hanjing Yu, 2025-05-26 The book provides a systematic investigation of the dynamic trajectories in the oral language development of English as a foreign language EFL learners integrating both inter individual variation and intra individual variability It also identifies unobserved heterogeneity in oral language production Using longitudinal designs comprehensive developmental data collection and innovative analytic techniques the study reveals distinct developmental trajectories in the oral language systems of EFL learners It also examines the interactions among complexity accuracy and fluency CAF exploring the potential of complex dynamic systems theory CDST inspired approaches to studying oral language development and their implications for teaching oral language to Chinese learners In addition by employing the novel growth mixture model GMM method the study identifies salient developmental patterns of CAF within a larger population thereby contributing to the generalizability of findings from CDST based language development research This book will be valuable to students researchers and educational practitioners interested in oral language development and complex dynamic systems theory

Individual differences in early instructed language learning Raphael Berthele, Isabelle Udry, 2021 Variability in predispositions for language learning has attracted scholarly curiosity for over 100 years Despite major changes in theoretical explanations and foreign second language teaching paradigms some patterns of associations between predispositions and learning outcomes seem timelessly robust This book discusses evidence from a research project investigating individual differences in a wide variety of domains ranging from language aptitude over general cognitive abilities to motivational and other affective and social constructs The focus lies on young learners aged 10 to 12 a less frequently investigated age in aptitude research The data stem from two samples of multilingual learners in German speaking Switzerland The target languages are French and English The chapters of the book offer two complementary perspectives on the topic On the one hand cross sectional investigations of the underlying structure of these individual differences and their association with the target languages are discussed Drawing on factor analytical and multivariable analyses the different components are scrutinized with respect to their mutual dependence and their relative impact on target language skills The analyses also take into account contextual factors such as the learners family background and differences across the two contexts investigated On the other hand the potential to predict learner s skills in the target language over time based on the many different indicators is investigated using machine learning algorithms The results provide new insights into the stability of the individual dispositions on the impact of contextual variables and on empirically robust dimensions within the array of variables tested

Complexity in Classroom Foreign Language Learning Motivation Richard J. Sampson, 2016-06-02 This book explores how complex systems theory can contribute to the understanding of classroom language learner motivation through an extended examination of one particular situated research project Working from the lived experience of the participants the study describes how action research methods were used to explore the dynamic conditions operating in a foreign language classroom in Japan The book draws attention to the highly personalised and individual yet equally co formed nature of classroom foreign language learning motivation and to the importance of agency and emotions in language learning It presents an extended illustration of the applicability of complex systems theory for research design and process in SLA and its narrative approach shines light upon the evolving nature of research and role of the researcher The study will be a valuable resource for practitioners researchers and postgraduate students interested in classroom language teaching and learning especially those with a focus on motivation among learners      Cognitive Individual Differences in Second Language Acquisition Zhisheng (Edward) Wen, Richard L.
