Dodsworth, 2018-09-22 The interdisciplinary uses of traditional cartographic resources and modern GIS tools allow for the analysis and discovery of information across a wide spectrum of fields A Research Guide to Cartographic Resources navigates the numerous American and Canadian cartographic resources available in print and online offering researchers academics and students with information on how to locate and access the large variety of resources new and old. Dozens of different cartographic materials are highlighted and summarized along with lists of map libraries and geospatial centers and related professional associations. A Research Guide to Cartographic Resources consists of 18 chapters, two appendices and a detailed index that includes place names and libraries structured in a manner consistent with most reference guides including cartographic categories such as atlases, dictionaries, gazetteers, handbooks, maps, plans, GIS data and other related material. Almost all of the resources listed in this guide are categorized by geography down to the county level making efficient work of the type of material required to meet the information needs of those interested in researching place specific cartographic related resources. Additionally, this guide will help those interested in not only developing a comprehensive collection in these subject areas but get an understanding of what materials are being collected and housed in specific map libraries, geospatial centers and their related websites. Of particular value are the sections that offer directories of cartographic and GIS libraries as well as comprehensive lists of geospatial datasets down to the county level. This volume combines the traditional and historical collections of cartography with the modern applications of GIS based maps and geospatial datasets.

New York State Teacher, 1903 Merrill Earth Science Ralph M. Feather, Susan Leach Snyder, Dale T. Hesser, 1995 Hands-On General Science Activities with Real-Life Applications Pam Walker, Elaine Wood, 1994-11-02

Topics include plate tectonics, rock weathering, wave energy, space travel and surface tension. Tularemia: Epidemiology, Ecology, Genomics, Immunity and Pathogenesis Marina Santic, Anders Sjöstedt, Thomas Henry, Jiri Stulik, Max Maurin, Anders Johansson, Joseph Wayne Conlan, 2020-01-22

Tularemia is a severe anthropozoonosis caused by Francisella tularensis. The genus Francisella contains five species: F. tularensis, F. philomiragia, F. hispaniensis, F. noatunensis and F. novicida. First described in 1911 in Tulare County, California, it has since been reported worldwide, capable of infecting more than 250 vertebrates and invertebrate species. Although it causes disease in various animal species, no animal has been identified as a main reservoir of this pathogen. Humans acquire infection by several routes, including direct contact with infected animals, ingestion of water or food contaminated by infected animals, exposure to infected arthropod vectors or by inhalation of infective aerosols resulting in pneumonic, oropharyngeal, glandular, ulceroglandular or oculoglandular tularemia. The clinical presentation of human tularemia depends on route of the infection, the causative Francisella strain and the immune response of the host. A live attenuated vaccine LVS has been available for more than 50 years, however, unlikely to become licensed in the future due to a lack of understanding of the genetic basis for its attenuation. Due to the ease of its dissemination, its multiple routes of infection, its low dose of infection, severe morbidity and high rate of mortality, F. tularensis subsp. tularensis has been classified as a category A bioterrorism agent by the CDC. Many virulence factors of F. tularensis have been discovered and investigated, but more in-depth host-pathogen interaction analyses are needed to define mechanisms of pathogenicity and virulence of this unique pathogen.
