Understanding Cultures through Their Key Words Anna Wierzbicka, 1997-08-07 This book develops the dual themes that languages can differ widely in their vocabularies and are also sensitive indices to the cultures to which they belong Wierzbicka seeks to demonstrate that every language has key concepts expressed in key words which reflect the core values of a given culture She shows that cultures can be revealingly studied compared and explained to outsiders through their key concepts and that the analytical framework necessary for this purpose is provided by the natural semantic metalanguage based on lexical universals that the author and colleagues have developed on the basis of wide ranging cross linguistic investigations Appealing to anthropologists psychologists and philosophers as well as linguists this book demonstrates that cultural patterns can be studied in a verifiable rigorous and non speculative way on the basis of empirical evidence and in a coherent theoretical framework First Language Acquisition Eve V. The Invention of the Self Andrew Spira,2020-06-25 This book is an examination of personal identity exploring both who we think we are and how we construct the sense of ourselves through art It proposes that the notion of personal identity is a psycho social construction that has evolved over many centuries While this idea has been widely discussed in recent years Andrew Spira approaches it from a completely new point of view Rather than relying on the thinking subject s attempts to identify itself consciously and verbally it focuses on the traces that the self sense has unconsciously left in the fabric of its environment in the form of non verbal cultural conventions Covering a millennium of western European cultural history it amounts to an anthropology of personal identity in the West Following a broadly chronological path Spira traces the self sense from its emergence from the collectivity of the medieval Church to its consummation in the individualistic concept of artistic genius in the nineteenth century In doing so it aims to bridge a gap that exists between cultural history and philosophy Regarding cultural history especially art history it elicits significances from its material that have been thoroughly overlooked Regarding philosophy it highlights the crucial role that material culture plays in the formation of philosophical ideas It argues that the sense of personal self is as much revealed by cultural conventions and as a cultural convention as it is observable to the mind as an object of philosophical enquiry
