Nijmegen In De Branding:

Chosen Legacies Linde Egberts, 2017-07-14 The urge for regional identity has not declined in the process of globalization. Rather, heritage is used to develop regional distinctiveness and to charge identities with a past. Particularly helpful for this aim are creation stories, Golden Ages or recent shared traumas. Some themes such as the Roman era or the Second World War appear easier to appropriate than for example prehistory. This book assesses the role of heritage in the construction of regional identities in Western Europe. It contains case studies on early medieval heritage in Alsace and Euregio Meuse Rhine, industrial heritage in the German Ruhr area and competing memories in the Arnhem Nijmegen region in the Netherlands. It presents new insights into the process of heritage production on a regional level in relationship to processes of identity construction. The theoretical analysis of heritage and regional identity is innovative as these concepts were hardly analysed in relation to each other before. This book also offers insights into policy, tourism, spatial development and regional development to policymakers, politicians, designers and professionals in the heritage and tourism industries. Nijmegen in de branding

Outsourcing Planning Jantine Grijzen, 2010 This thesis addresses the wide involvement of consultants in regional spatial planning projects in the Netherlands Although consultants have become important actors in public policy making and media and politics have frequently addressed this as a problem until now the scientific literature has paid little attention to them This thesis shows that the wide involvement of consultants can best be explained from the perspective of increasing problems of coordination and cooperation in Dutch regional spatial planning Planning has become an activity performed by many governments and stakeholders together with overlapping policies expertise and procedures From an external position consultants can act as intermediaries between interdependent actors both by mediating between personal relations as well as by connecting substantive issues Hiring consultants however is also a sign of emptying out governments when governments outsource core tasks like policy articulation and cooperation with other governments they can loose the capability to develop high quality and democratic plans in a complex and interdependent world
