Mormonism and the Emotions Mauro Properzi, 2015-05-21 Mormonism and the Emotions An Analysis of LDS Scriptural Texts is an introductory Latterday Saint LDS theology of emotion that is both canonically based and scientifically informed It highlights three widely accepted characteristics of emotion that emerge from scientific perspectives namely the necessity of cognition for its emergence the personal responsibility attached to its manifestations and its instrumentality in facilitating various processes of human development and experience In analyzing the basic theological structure of Mormonism and its unique canonical texts the objective is to determine the extent to which LDS theology is compatible with this three fold definition of emotion At this basic level of explanation the conclusion is that science and Mormon theology undoubtedly share a common perspective The textual investigation focuses on unique Mormon scriptures and on their descriptions of six common emotions hope fear joy sorrow love and hate For each of these emotional phenomena the extensive report of textual references consistently confirms an implied presence of the outlined three fold model of emotion Thus the evidence points to the presence of an underlying folk model of emotion in the text that broadly matches scientific definitions Additionally the theological examination is enlarged with a particular focus on the Mormon theology of atonement which is shown to play a significant role in LDS understandings of emotions A broad exploration of such areas as epistemology cosmology soteriology and the theological anthropology of Mormonism further contextualizes the analysis and roots it in the LDS theological worldview

At Risk of Deprivation Jonas Bergmann, 2023-10-19 This open access book examines how and why various forms of climate im-mobilities can impact people's objective and subjective well-being Worsening climate impacts are forcing subsistence farmers worldwide to decide between staying or leaving their homes This mixed methods study analyzes cases of climate related migration displacement relocation and immobility in Peru's coastal highland and rainforest regions The results reveal that numerous farmers experienced profound and often negative well-being impacts regardless of whether they stayed or migrated The higher the structural constraints such as weak governance and the more damaging the climate impacts were the higher the risk of well being declines Additionally the affected individuals often had limited agency and ability to mitigate losses These findings challenge the notion of migration as adaptation and emphasize the importance of safeguarding the human rights and security of those affected while addressing loss and damage Without significant investments in such efforts climate impacts could sharply diminish the well being of numerous subsistence farmers worldwide irrespective of whether they stay or migrate
