

Rules

- In 2013, NFHS football rules expanded the use of communication devices for the teams on the sideline. This rule included the use of video that could review the previous play. However, that rule does not allow the official to utilize the information.
- Basketball is the only sport that allows for instant replay by National Federation rules. It is limited to the last shot of the fourth quarter or any overtime to determine if the shot was released prior to the horn and if it was a two or three point shot.
