Samuel Beckett and the Theatre of the Witness Hannah Simpson, 2022-05-12 Samuel Beckett and the Theatre of the Witness explores Beckett's representation of physical pain in his theatre plays in the long aftermath of World War II emphasising how the issues raised by this staging of pain speak directly to matters lying at the heart of his work the affective power of the human body the doubtful capacity of language as a means of communication the aesthetic and ethical functioning of the theatre medium and the vexed question of intersubjective empathy Alongside the wartime and post war plays of fellow Francophone writers Albert Camus Eugène Ionesco Pablo Picasso and Marguerite Duras this study resituates Beckett's early plays in a new conceptualising of le théâtre du témoin or a theatre of the witness These are plays concerned with the epistemological and ethical uncertainties of witnessing another's pain rather than with the sufferer's own direct experience They raise troubling questions about our capacity to comprehend and respond to another being's pain Drawing on an interdisciplinary framework of extant criticism recorded historical audience response theatre and affect theory and medical understandings of bodily pain Hannah Simpson argues that these plays do not offer any easily negotiable encounter with physical suffering pushing us to recognise the very otherness of another being's pain even as it invades our own affective sphere In place of any comforting transcendence or redemption of endured pain they offer a starkly sceptical even pessimistic probing of what it is to witness another's suffering

Levine, 2013-04-05 Pathology of the Capitalist Spirit is about capital and about the economic system that bears its name In this book Levine argues that our pursuit of ever more wealth in the form of capital expresses our dissatisfaction with the world we live in with what we have and what we don't have Capital embodies our hope for something different Because capital embodies this hope it has become desire's object In his study of capitalism Levine explores the meaning of capital as a social reality connected to fundamental human aspirations The link between capital and the pursuit of a hoped for state is especially important in light of the stubborn insistence on the part of its critics that capitalism exists to serve the material interests of those whose vocation is to own capital This misunderstanding ignores what is essential about capital which is its link not to interests but to hope especially the hope that by accumulating capital the individual can achieve an attachment to the good It is this hope that blocks tolerance of any notion that there is something unfair in the capitalist's acquisition of wealth and that fairness can be achieved through its redistribution to others It is also this hope that animates the capitalist system as a whole And in that sense this hope is the spirit of capitalism To develop this theme Levine calls on the ideas and writings of major theorists involved with understanding modernity and capitalism Adam Smith Karl Marx Max Weber Emile Durkheim and Joseph Schumpeter Modernism's Second Act: A Cultural Narrative I.
