Nederland Waterland De Waterhuishouding Van Nederland:

Water Policy in the Netherlands Stijn Reinhard, Henk Folmer, 2011 As a low lying delta region with a high population density the Netherlands has long focused on the prevention of flooding catastrophes and the reclamation of valuable land The evolution of Dutch water governance beginning with the creation of local water boards in the Middle Ages and growing into a complex infrastructure of polders dams and controlled waterways offers a compelling study of pitfalls and successes within one of the world's most challenging regions for water management Water Policy in the Netherlands traces the arc of water governance in the country from technological in Nederland waterland Marijke Kers, 1998

Water Management in the Netherlands and the Screening of Surface Water Technical and Managerial Tactics Meinaard A. Veen, Rand Corporation, 1988 Information Needs for Water Management Jos G. Timmerman, 2014-07-22 This book provides the necessary elements to determine exactly what information should be collected to make the collected information relevant for policy makers It highlights the dissatisfaction of information users about the information they get and the reasons for this dissatisfaction It also discusses general issues around the role and use of information in policy making The text then describes the how to develop a full understanding of the policy makers information needs and will describe how policy makers can be included in the process Finally the book describes how the results from this process are input for the information production process

Climate Change Effects on Groundwater Resources Holger Treidel, Jose Luis Martin-Bordes, Jason J. Gurdak, 2011-12-02 Climate change is expected to modify the hydrological cycle and affect freshwater resources Groundwater is a critical source of fresh drinking water for almost half of the world's population and it also supplies irrigated agriculture Groundwater is also important in sustaining streams lakes wetlands and associated ecosystems But despite this knowledge about the impact of climate change on groundwater quantity and quality is limited Direct impacts of climate change on natural processes groundwater recharge discharge storage saltwater intrusion biogeochemical reactions chemical fate and transport may be exacerbated by human activities indirect impacts Increased groundwater abstraction for example may be needed in areas with unsustainable or contaminated surface water resources caused by droughts and floods Climate change effects on groundwater resources are therefore closely linked to other global change drivers including population growth urbanization and land use change coupled with other socio economic and political trends Groundwater response to global changes is a complex function that depends on climate change and variability topography aquifer characteristics vegetation dynamics and human activities This volume contains case studies from diverse aquifer systems scientific methods and climatic settings that have been conducted globally under the framework of the UNESCO IHP project Groundwater Resources Assessment under the Pressures of Humanity and Climate Change GRAPHIC This book presents a current and global synthesis of scientific findings and policy recommendations for scientists water managers and policy makers towards adaptive management of groundwater sustainability under future climate change and variability European Public Administration and Informatization P. Frissen,1992 The result of an international comparative research project on informatization in European public administration this work addresses information policies large scale information systems informational infrastructure and water policy and informatization and administrative modernization Climatic Change: Implications for the Hydrological Cycle and for Water Management Martin Beniston,2006-04-11 year simulations in order to separate noise in the system from the climate change signal Several contributing papers focused on case studies using Regional Climate Models RCMs linked to hydrological models applied to the analysis of runoff under conditions of convective activity and extreme precipitation in regions of complex topography or stakeholder driven investigations such as water runoff simulations in Quebec undertaken for a major utility Thorough analyses of GCM results for the Century were reported at the Workshop in order to illustrate the improvements in model results which have taken place in recent years and the increasing confidence with which the models can be used for projecting climatic change in coming decades However there is still much room for improvement there is also a need to address more fully the manner in which climate and impacts models e g hydrological models can be linked in terms of consistency and the overlap between different scales the underlying physical assumptions and the parameterizations used Session 2 was devoted to the two extremes of water resources namely floods and droughts the focus here being to identify the climate change component in river floods These have significant economic implications as was shown by several scientists from Western and Central Europe Many long time series have been studied worldwide with the aim of detection of nonstationarities yet there is no conclusive evidence of climate related changes in flow records in general *Book catalog of the Library and Information Services Division Environmental Science Information Center.
