Trafficking in Antiracism Lyndsey P. Beutin, 2023-02-27 In Trafficking in Antiracism Lyndsey P Beutin analyzes how campaigns to end human trafficking often described as modern day slavery invoke the memory of transatlantic slavery to support positions ultimately grounded in antiracism Drawing on contemporary antitrafficking visual culture and media discourse she shows how a constellation of media philanthropic NGO and government actors invested in ending human trafficking repurpose the history of transatlantic slavery and abolition in ways that undermine contemporary struggles for racial justice and slavery reparations The recurring narratives images and figures such as slavery in Africa Arab slave traders and Black incapacity for self governance discursively turn Black people across the diaspora into the enslavers of the past and present in place of white Americans and Europeans Doing so Beutin contends creates a rhetorical defense against being held liable for slavery s dispossessions and violence Despite these implications Beutin demonstrates that antitrafficking discourse remains popular and politically useful for former slaving nations and their racial beneficiaries because it refashions historic justifications for white supremacy into today s abolition of slavery

That Most Precious Merchandise Hannah Barker, 2019-09-27 The history of the Black Sea as a source of Mediterranean slaves stretches from ancient Greek colonies to human trafficking networks in the present day At its height during the fourteenth and early fifteenth centuries the Black Sea slave trade was not the sole source of Mediterranean slaves Genoese Venetian and Egyptian merchants bought captives taken in conflicts throughout the region from North Africa sub Saharan Africa the Balkans and the Aegean Sea Yet the trade in Black Sea slaves provided merchants with profit and prestige states with military recruits tax revenue and diplomatic influence and households with the service of women men and children Even though Genoa Venice and the Mamluk sultanate of Egypt and Greater Syria were the three most important strands in the web of the Black Sea slave trade they have rarely been studied together Examining Latin and Arabic sources in tandem Hannah Barker shows that Christian and Muslim inhabitants of the Mediterranean shared a set of assumptions and practices that amounted to a common culture of slavery Indeed the Genoese Venetian and Mamluk slave trades were thoroughly entangled with wide ranging effects Genoese and Venetian disruption of the Mamluk trade led to reprisals against Italian merchants living in Mamluk cities while their participation in the trade led to scathing criticism by supporters of the crusade movement who demanded commercial powers use their leverage to weaken the force of Islam Reading notarial registers tax records law merchants accounts travelers tales and letters sermons slave buying manuals and literary works as well as treaties governing the slave trade and crusade propaganda Barker gives a rich picture of the context in which merchants traded and enslaved people met their fate
