Inclusive Education in South Africa and the Developing World Sigamoney Manicka Naicker, 2018-09-24 This book offers a framework for the implementation of inclusive education in developing countries It proposes bringing the vulnerable to the centre of planning decisions recognising the history of special education in psychologizing failure and that mainstream must own the transformation to inclusive education Challenging Inclusive Education Policy and Practice in Africa, 2018-11-26 It is a fundamental right for all children to be given access to quality education to ensure they reach their full potential as individuals a right which is reflected in international law in Article 26 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and supported by the Education for All Agenda 1990 and the United Nations Convention on the Rights of People with Disabilities and Optional Protocol 2006 Nation states across Africa have signed up to these protocols and remain committed to ensuring education for all children The progress globally however in the past 25 years including in Africa has been slow UNESCO 2015 Questions remain on why this is so and what can be done about it This book brings together researchers education policy makers and academics from the African community What is unique about this text is that it includes local insights narrated and critiqued by local professionals This book presents a wide range of African countries across the continent to provide a critical overview of the key issues affecting developments It questions the origins of ideas and definitions around inclusive education and the impact it has made on policy and ultimately practice within local socio cultural and economic communities both urban and rural It highlights positive developments as well as challenges and provides a deep understanding of why the process of implementing inclusive education is so complex in the African continent It provides an understanding of what is needed to develop a more sustainable model of inclusive education across the continent and within specific countries Teaching and Learning Mathematics in Multilingual Classrooms Anjum Halai, Philip Clarkson, 2015-12-17 Contemporary concerns in mathematics education recognize that in the increasingly technological and globalized world with concomitant change in population demographics e g immigration urbanization and a change in the status of languages e g English as a dominant language of science and technology multilingualism in classrooms is a norm rather than an exception Shifts in perspective also view language not simply as an instrument for cognition with all learners equipped with this instrument in service of learning although clearly in the classroom that remains of importance Rather it is now also being acknowledged that language use is inherently political so that the language that gets official recognition in the classroom is invariably the language of the powerful elite or the dominant societal language or in the case of post colonial contexts the language of the colonisers From this socio political role of language in learning quite different issues arise for teaching learning and curriculum for linguistically marginalized learners than that of cognition e g immigrants second language learners other Policies on language in education are being considered and re considered with specific reference to mathematics teaching and learning Given the policy environment globally the proposed publication is timely This edited collection draws on recent emerging insights and understandings about the approaches to improving policy and practice in mathematics education and mathematics teacher education in multilingual settings It presents and discusses critically examples of work from a range of contexts and uses these examples to draw out key issues for research in education in language diverse settings including teaching learning curriculum and fit these with appropriate policy and equity approaches With contributions from all over the world especially novice researchers in low income countries this book is a valuable resource for courses in Mathematics Education and related social sciences both at the graduate and undergraduate levels as well as for students of international development Mathematics Education in East Africa Anjum Halai, Geoff

Tennant, 2016-03-08 This Open Access book is a valuable resource for policymakers and practitioners as it brings insights mainly from developing countries where relatively less research activity takes place It is also a valuable resource for courses in mathematics education in the teacher education colleges and departments of education in the sub Saharan Africa region In the increasingly global and technological world mathematics is seen as a significant gatekeeper of opportunities for social and economic advancement and mobility Hence countries and development agencies in the broader sub Saharan Africa region are looking towards increasing access to relevant and high quality secondary education as a lever towards economic development Policy makers and other key decision makers in education look towards improvement in mathematics teaching and learning as a key focus in education reform In the East Africa region also a number of initiatives have been taken at the national level in the respective countries to improve the quality of mathematics education This book provides an in depth comparative analysis of the developments and issues in mathematics education in Kenya Tanzania Rwanda and Uganda and advances our understanding of the state of secondary mathematics education in East Africa Biblia ,1475 Catalog of
