Manifest Destinations J. Philip Gruen, 2014-09-02 Tourists started visiting the American West in sizable numbers after the Union Pacific and Central Pacific Railroads were completed in 1869 Contemporary travel brochures and guidebooks of the 1870s sold tourists on the spectacular scenery of the West and depicted its cities as extensions of the natural landscape as well as places where efficient business operations and architectural grandeur prevailed all now easily accessible thanks to the relative comfort of transcontinental rail travel Yet as people flocked to western cities it was the everyday life that captured their interest the new technologies incessant clatter and all the upheaval of modern metropolises In Manifest Destinations J. Philip Gruen examines the ways in which tourists experienced Chicago Denver Salt Lake City and San Francisco between 1869 and 1893 a period of rapid urbanization and accelerated modernity Gruen pays particular attention to the contrast between the way these cities were promoted and the way visitors actually experienced them Guidebooks made Chicago Denver Salt Lake City and San Francisco seem like picturesque environments sprinkled with civilized buildings and refined people But Gruen's research in diaries letters and traveler narratives shows that tourists were interested as tourists usually are in the unexpected encounters that characterize city life Visitors relished the cities unfamiliar storefronts and advertising public transit systems ethnic diversity and multiple dwellings in all their urban messiness They thrust themselves into the noise danger and cacophony Western cities did not always live up to the marketing strategies of guidebooks but the western cities fast pace and many novelties held extraordinary appeal to visitors from the East Coast and abroad In recounting lively anecdotes and by focusing on tourist perceptions of everyday life in western cities Gruen shows how these cities developed the economy of tourism to eventually encompass both the urban and the natural West
