Mobilities and Foucault Katharina Manderscheid, Tim Schwanen, David Tyfield, 2017-10-02 Although Foucault's work has been employed and embraced enthusiastically by some mobilities scholars discussion across these two traditions to date has mostly been partial and unsystematic Yet Foucault's work can make critical contributions for example to thinking about governing mobilities in contemporary societies while conversely mobilities research opens up new perspectives on Foucault In combination these bodies of work can illuminate issues as diverse as the greater interdependencies between mobility systems e.g. transport tourism trade internet use the proliferation of the undesired mobilities of viruses of natural phenomena like fire of what is taken to be criminality and other seemingly inevitable by products of globalisation the perceived threats to desirable forms of mobility as constituted by climate change peak oil and energy security and terrorism and warfare and the increased popularity of logics of governance premised on choice responsabilisation and the re coding of phenomena in economic terms under neo liberalism Against this background this book brings together the first major collection of contributions from across the social sciences with a shared interest in both mobilities and Foucauldian thinking This book was published as a special issue of Mobilities growing contribution to climate change tourist and traveller behaviour is currently not acknowledged as an important sector within the development of climate policy Whilst tourists may be increasingly aware of potential impacts on climate change there is evidence that most are unwilling to modify their actual behaviours Influencing individual behaviour in tourism and informing effective governance is therefore an essential part of climate change mitigation This significant volume is the first to explore the psychological and social factors that may contribute to and inhibit sustainable change in the context of tourist and traveller behaviour It draws on a range of disciplines to offer a critical review of the psychological understandings and behavioural aspects of climate change and tourism mobilities in addition to governance and policies based upon psychological behavioural and social mechanisms It therefore provides a more informed understanding of how technology infrastructure and cost distribution can be developed in order to reach stronger mitigation goals whilst ensuring that resistance from consumers for socio psychological reasons are minimized Written by leading academics from a range of disciplinary backgrounds and regions this ground breaking volume is essential reading for all those interested in the effective governance of tourism s contribution to climate change now and in the future

environmentalists Mobility and Migration Choices Martin van der Velde, Ton van Naerssen, 2016-03-03 The crossing of national state borders is one of the most discussed issues of contemporary times and it poses many challenges for individual and collective identities This concerns both short distance mobility as well as long distance migration Choosing to move or not across international borders is a complex decision involving both cognitive and emotional processes This book tests the approach that three crucial thresholds need to be crossed before mobility occurs the individual's mindset about migrating the choice of destination and perception of crossing borders to that location and the specific routes and spatial trajectories available to get there Thus both borders and trajectories can act as thresholds to spatial moves The threshold approach with its focus on processes affecting whether when and where to move aims to understand the decision making process in all its dimensions in the hope that this will lead to a better understanding of the ways migrants conceive perceive and undertake their transnational journeys This book examines the three constitutive parts discerned in the cross border mobility decision making process people borders and trajectories and their interrelationships Illustrated by a global range of case studies it demonstrates that the relation between the three is not fixed but flexible and that decision making contains aspects of belonging instability security and volatility affecting their mobility or immobility Mobility for Smart Cities and Regional Development - Challenges for Higher Education Michael E. system is not just a matter of adopting a number of technological innovations to improve performance in terms of people planet and profits A broader structural and societal transition is needed in technology as well as in institutions behavioural patterns and the economy as a whole In this broader view neither the free market nor the public sector will be the unique key player in making this transition happen Elements of such an approach are presented in this book in a number of domains integrating transport infrastructure and land use planning thus connecting fields that are rather unconnected in day to day policies experiments with dynamic transport optimization including reports on pilot projects to test the viability of transitions towards reliable transport systems describing a reversal from supply driven towards demand driven approaches and sustainable logistics and traffic management from local city distribution to global closed supply chain loops
