Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CON) and an exercise group (EX). The EX group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic and resistance exercise. The CON group did not exercise. HR and EE were measured at rest and during a 30-min submaximal cycle ergometer test at baseline and after 12 weeks. The EX group showed a significant decrease in HR at rest and during the test, and a significant increase in EE at rest and during the test compared to the CON group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve cardiovascular fitness and increase energy expenditure in sedentary, middle-aged women.

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.
