

Electrical Wiring Guide

To wire your own home, you must comply with the requirements of the most recent edition of the National Electric Code (NEC). NEC articles are indicated by brackets ([ ]), and Jefferson County Supplements are in ( { } ). The NEC is not intended as a design specification nor an instruction manual for untrained persons. Its purpose is the practical safeguarding of persons and property from hazards arising from the use of electricity and addresses fundamental safety principles. This guideline is written to help the lay person comply with the NEC requirements for single family dwelling units and is in no way inclusive of all requirements for every installation. CAUTION!! Some wiring materials sold locally may not meet the requirements of the NEC.

Along with meeting NEC requirements, the permit and inspection process defined in the Colorado Revised Statutes must be followed. An electrical permit is required for the construction of a new home or any new electrical work being performed in the home/dwelling unit. The electrical permit can be inclusive of the construction meter, wiring of the dwelling unit, the temporary building service, and any other electrical installations associated with the dwelling. The electrical inspector will make inspections on all aspects of the electrical installations, (i.e. construction meter, underground, rough electric, service (temporary building service), final electric, and others). If for some reason the job does not meet the requirements of the NEC and an extra visit is necessary, a re-inspection fee may be required before the inspector will return.

Items required to obtain an inspection and to minimize delays:

- Building address shall be posted and visible from the street or area of access.

- Building shall be unlocked and accessible.

- Building "PERMIT" shall be posted on the construction site.

- All work shall be complete and ready for inspection, including any and all corrections from previous inspections.

- County approved plans shall be on site and all work shall match county approved plans.

Note: Inspector will not enter a building w/valuables, without an adult being present (18 years old minimum).
