Possibility's Parents Margaret Seyford Hrezo, Nicholas Pappas, 2019-10-23 This book links the questions people ask about why things exist why the world is the way it is and whether and how it is possible to change their society or world with the societal myths they develop and teach to answer those questions and organize and bring order to their communal lives It also is about the need for change in western societies current organizing concept classical Lockean liberalism Despite the attempts of numerous insightful political thinkers the myth of classical liberalism has developed so many cracks that it cannot be put back together again If not entirely failed it is at this point unsalvageable in its present form Never the thought of just one person the liberal model of individual religious political and economic freedom developed over hundreds of years starting with Martin Luther's dictum that every man should be his own priest Although classical liberalism means different things to different people at its most basic level this model sees human beings as individuals who exist prior to government and have rights over government and the social good That is the individual right always trumps the moral and social good and individuals have few obligations to one another unless they actively choose to undertake them Possibility's Parents argues that Lockean liberalism has reached the end of its logic in ways that make it unable to handle the western world's most pressing problems and that novelists whose writing includes the form and texture of myth have important insights to offer on the way forward

Mapping Home in Contemporary Narratives Aleksandra Bida,2018-09-22 By offering an analysis of the idea of home across the individual interpersonal social and global scales Mapping Home aims to show the extent to which self concept is deeply tied to constructions of home in a globally mobile age The epistemological link between dwelling as knowing oneself and the experience of welcome as key to being able to map one's place(s) in the world are examined through Martin Heidegger's concept of dwelling Zygmunt Bauman's notion of liquid modernity Jacques Derrida's exploration of hostile hospitality and Kwame Anthony Appiah's sense of cosmopolitanism as border crossing conversation To further explore these ideas the book draws on multimodal literature and films that span genres including gothic horror fantasy and science fiction thoughtful comedies and politically nuanced tragedies The quality that deeply links the texts is their ability to illuminate the stabilities and mobilities through which home not only mediates but also integrates an individual's diverse experiences of belonging in different locations as well as on different geocultural scales from the intimate household to the more abstract hometown or homeland and beyond

Only Imagine Kathleen Stock, 2017

Only Imagine offers a theory of fictional content or as it is sometimes known fictional truth The theory of fictional content Kathleen Stock argues for is known as extreme intentionalism the idea that the fictional content of a particular work is equivalent to exactly what the author of the work intended the reader to imagine Historically this sort of view has been highly unpopular Literary theorists and philosophers alike have poured scorn upon it The first half of this book attempts to argue that it should in fact be taken very seriously as an adequate account of fictional truth better in fact than many of its more popular rivals The second half explores various explanatory benefits of extreme intentionalism for other issues in the philosophy of fiction and imagination Namely can fiction give us reliable knowledge Why do we resist imagining certain fictions What in fact is a fiction And how should the imagination be characterised
