Death of the Desert Christine Luckritz Marquis, 2022-03-22 In the late fourth century the world of Christianity was torn apart by debate over the teachings of the third century theologian Origen and his positions on the incorporeality of God In the year 400 Archbishop Theophilus of Alexandria convened a council declaring Origen's later followers as heretics Shortly thereafter Theophilus banished the so called Tall Brothers four Origenist monks who led monastic communities in the western Egyptian desert along with hundreds of their brethren In some accounts Theophilus leads a violent group of drunken youths and enslaved Ethiopians in sacking and desecrating the monastery in others he justly exercises his episcopal duties In some versions Theophilus' violent actions effectively bring the Golden Age of desert monasticism to an end in others he has shown proper respect for the desert fathers whose life of asceticism is subsequently destroyed by bands of barbarian marauders For some the desert came to be inextricably connected to violence and trauma while for others it became a site of nostalgic recollection Which of these narratives subsequent generations believed depended in good part on the sources they were reading In Death of the Desert Christine Luckritz Marquis offers a fresh examination of this critical juncture in Christian history and brings into dialogue narrative strands that have largely been separated in the scholarly tradition She takes the violence perpetrated by Theophilus as a turning point for desert monasticism and considers how monks became involved in acts of violence and how that violence came back to haunt them More broadly her careful attention to the dynamic relations between memory practices the rhetorical constructions of place racialized discourse and language and deeds of violence speak to us in our own time

Palace-Clan Relations in the Bronze and Iron Ages Levant Hannes Bezzel, Karen Covello-Paran, Joachim J. Krause, Omer Sergi, 2025-07-21 Recent studies have demonstrated that ancient Near Eastern societies considered themselves as part of one social fabric divided not by mode of life or place of residence but according to traditional associations of kin Kinship relations appear to maintain their essential integrity over long periods of time even within complex political organizations In the past it was common to view state formation as an evolutionary process from tribe to state during which former kinship relations and tribal identities dissolve in face of the political identity imposed by the state Today however it seems that there were no evolutionary relations between the tribe and the state as they both represent identities that coexist at the same time It is against this background that a common structural element of ancient Levantine polities emerges their fragmented nature mostly based on an overarching concept of kinship This book presents studies of different polities and societies from the Bronze and Iron Ages Levant and beyond highlighting their kin based social and political structures interactions and ultimate formations as may be gleaned from both material and textual
