One Man's Wilderness Richard Proenneke, 2018-04-04 Excerpt from More Readings From One Man's Wilderness The Journals of Richard L Proenneke 1974 1980 In my conversations with Proenneke during the 1970s I was heartened that he always expressed strong support to preserve the Twin Lakes Lake Clark country Although I was not then working for the National Park Service I was raised to believe that national parks were very good for our nation and that we ought to have more of them especially in unspoiled places like Alaska Having little prior experience with the nps Proenneke was initially skeptical that the Service might not have been the best way to preserve the area because he feared national park status would bring far too many visitors who might overwhelm the resources Gradually he came to recognize that the nps was the proper institution to preserve and protect America's special places While Proenneke second guessed and groused in his journals about some nps management decisions I never heard him condemn nps goals of resource protection and wilderness preservation About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
