Jia Zhangke's 'Hometown Trilogy' Michael Berry,2019-07-25 The three films comprising director

Jia Zhangke's Hometown Trilogy (Xiao Wu 1997, Platform 2000 and Unknown Pleasures 2002) represent key contributions to the cinema of contemporary China. The films, which are set in Jia's home province of Shanxi, highlight the plight of marginalised individuals—singers, dancers, pickpockets, prostitutes, and drifters—as they struggle to navigate through the radically transforming terrain of contemporary China. Xiao Wu tells the story of a small-time pickpocket who faces the breakdown of his relationships with his friends, family, and girlfriend. Platform, often considered Jia's most ambitious film, is an epic narrative that bears witness to China's roaring eighties and the radical transformation from socialism to capitalism. Jia's third feature, Unknown Pleasures, continues his meditation on China in transition, tracing the story of two delinquent teenagers who live on a diet of saccharine Chinese pop music, karaoke, Pulp Fiction, and Coca-Cola while entertaining pipe dreams of joining the army and becoming small-time gangsters. Michael Berry's in-depth study of the three films considers them as an ambitious attempt to re-examine the transformation and fate of provincial China, its places and people, as it is caught up in a whirlwind of sweeping social, cultural, and economic change. At the heart of the book lies a series of close readings of each of the three films through which Berry teases out their central narrative themes, highlighting Jia's use of editing, cinematic language, and mise en scene. He pays special attention to the place of intertextuality in Jia's oeuvre, as well as the central themes of destruction and change, stagnation and movement, political verses popular culture, and of course the ceaseless search for home. Michael Berry is Associate Professor of Contemporary Chinese Cultural Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara. He is the author of Speaking in Images: Interviews with Contemporary Chinese Filmmakers (2005) and A History of Pain: Trauma in Modern Chinese Literature and Film (2008). He is also the translator of several novels, including The Song of Everlasting Sorrow (2008), To Live (2004), Nanjing 1937 (1937), A Love Story (2002), and Wild Kids (2000).

Making Waves Frederick Lau, Christine R. Yano, 2018-02-28. Musical sounds are some of the most mobile human elements crossing national, cultural, and regional boundaries at an ever-increasing pace in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. Whole musical products travel easily, though not necessarily intact, via musicians, CDs, and earlier cassettes, satellite broadcasting, digital downloads, and streaming. The introductory chapter by the volume editors develops two framing metaphors: traveling music and making waves. The wave-making metaphor illuminates the ways that traveling music traverses flows of globalization and migration, initiating change and generating energy of their own. Each of the nine contributors further examines music, its songs, makers, instruments, aurality, aesthetics, and images as it crosses oceans, continents, and islands. In the process of landing in new homes, music interacts with older, established cultural environments, sometimes in unexpected ways and with surprising results. They see these traveling musics in Hawai'i, Asia, and the Pacific as making waves that is not only riding flows of globalism but instigating ripples of change. What is the nature of those ripples? What constitutes some of the infrastructure for the wave itself? What are some of the effects of music landing on transported to or appropriated from distant shores? How does the Hawai'i-Asia-Pacific context itself shape and get shaped by these musical waves The two poetic and evocative metaphors allow the individual contributors great leeway in charting their own course while simultaneously referring back to the influence of their mentor and colleague Ricardo D Trillos whom they identify as the wave maker The volume attempts to position music as at once ritual and entertainment esoteric and exoteric tradition and creativity within the cultural geographies of Hawai i Asia and the Pacific In doing so they situate music at the very core of global human endeavors
