In War and Peace Guy Stever, 2002-10-07 Science came into Guy Stever s life as a pure and peaceful pursuit It was only later as he walked through the wreckage of wartime London that he began to see science as central to a desperate struggle to survive Past president of Carnegie Mellon University former Chief Scientist of the U S Air Force one time Director of the National Science Foundation professor at MIT for 20 years member of the National Academies of Sciences and Engineering and science advisor to two presidents Guy Stever was a central figure in twentieth century science consistently on the front lines changing the fate of a nation In this thoughtful and candid memoir Stever recounts an extraordinary life that reveals as much about the man as about the major scientific and technological events of his day Born of humble origins and orphaned at an early age Stever journeyed from a small town in New York to work alongside British comrades who were developing and refining the critical radar technology that was to turn the tide of the war against the Germans As a technical intelligence officer these harrowing wartime years took him from the beachheads of Normandy to the German slave labor factories responsible for building the V 2 rockets Stever returned home committed to serving his country He became intimately involved in America s nascent guided missile program and was to remain a key player in the anti ballistic missile defense program that heralded the era of the Cold War As the decades passed Stever continued to exert lasting influence on countless scientific endeavors He was instrumental in the formation of new institutions from the creation of NASA in the post Sputnik years to the merging of Carnegie Tech and the Mellon Institution giving birth to Carnegie Mellon University As Presidential Science Advisor to both Nixon and Ford Stever shaped the very structure of contemporary presidential science advising And he was to chair the oversight committee that redesigned the space shuttle boosters after the Challenger explosion Guy Stever s life offers remarkable insight into the twentieth century Through his eyes we relive the history of the past 50 years witnesses to a tale of science and technology that is revealing in its scope and sweep

War and Peace Hans Mark, Lowell Wood, 2012-12-06 Writing even in overview of more than a half century of professional life of a giant of twentieth century science and technology such as Edward Teller is a daunting task We ask in advance the reader s pardon for passing over quickly or omitting entirely aspects of Teller s life and work which may seem of major significance but which we due to differences of perspective or knowledge speak too little or not at all We refer those interested in greater depth to the excellent biography by Stanley Blumberg and Gwen Owens The Life and Times of Edward Teller and we have with his permission printed Professor Eugene Wigner s An Appreciation On the 60th Birthday of Edward Teller immediately after this foreword so that the reader may consider the perspective of one of Teller's most illustrious contemporaries more than two decades ago Edward Teller was born in Budapest Hungary on January 15 1908 While his childhood was spent in the twilight of the Victorian age and its abrupt conclusion in the Great War and his youth in its especially turbulent aftermath in central Europe he doesn't bear visible scars from it

In Peace and War Jeffrey L. Cruikshank, 2007-09-01 Founded in 1937 the U S Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point New York has trained more than 20 000 professional mariners and in the process has weathered many turbulent times In Peace and War draws on extensive research including archival work and interviews with past and present day administrators alumni and current midshipmen to document the Academy's evolution from its beginnings to the present This balanced and comprehensive work details the vision and contributions of determined leaders both at Kings Point and in Washington who shaped the Academy It describes the evolution of the U S merchant marine and explains how a tragic fire aboard the passenger ship SS Morro Castle off the coast of New Jersey in which the shameful behavior of the ship's crew caused the unnecessary deaths of many passengers led to the passage of the Merchant Marine Act in 1936 which paved the way for the Academy It details how Kings Point has adjusted its training and priorities to meet the evolving needs of the nation For example visual signaling training was added to the curriculum in response to the growing threat from German subs in the months leading up to World War II In June 1940 Cadet William O Reilly's frantic signaling from the SS Washington a vessel carrying more than 1 700 refugees averted its sinking by a hostile submarine From its inception Kings Point has used the high seas as a campus with its students shipping out for a full year on commercial vessels to receive a thorough grounding in practical seamanship In wartime this has meant that Kings Point cadets often have found themselves in harm's way and some have paid the ultimate price Between 1942 and 1945 for example 142 Kings Point cadets were lost in action and countless others survived attacks all around the world At other times the conflict has been closer to home The book also describes the Academy's invaluable service after 9 11 when Kings Point personnel and vessels worked around the clock to ferry fire fighters and rescue personnel to and from nearby Ground Zero in Lower Manhattan Using compelling examples In Peace and War conveys the educational experience at the Academy today including the regiment of midshipmen and the required Sea Year both of which sharply distinguish Kings Point from almost all other educational institutions It uses the stories of ten graduates in Norfolk Virginia to explain what today's merchant marine is and to illustrate the wide range of careers and leadership roles for which the Academy prepares its students Finally the book details the dedication of the many alumni and other supporters who are committed to continuing Kings Point's contributions to the nation and the maritime industry and to preserving the proud traditions of this venerable institution

Intelligence Power in Peace and War Michael Herman, 1996-10-13 Intelligence services form an important but controversial part of the modern state Drawing mainly on British and American examples this book provides an analytic framework for understanding the intelligence community and assessing its value The author a former senior British intelligence officer describes intelligence activities the purposes which the system serves and the causes and effects of its secrecy He considers intelligence failure and how organisation and management can improve the chances of success Using parallels with the information society and the current search for efficiency in public administration as a whole the book explores the issues involved in deciding how much intelligence is needed and discusses the kinds of management necessary In his conclusions Michael Herman discusses intelligence s national value in the post Cold War world He also argues that it has important contributions to make to international security but that its threat inducing activities should be kept in check
