and present is investigated through ethnozoology which is a hybrid discipline structured with elements from both the natural and social sciences as it seeks to understand how humans have perceived and interacted with faunal resources throughout history. In a broader context, ethnozoology and its companion discipline, ethnobotany, form part of the larger body of the science of ethnobiology. In recent years, the importance of ethnozoological and ethnobiological studies has increasingly been recognized, unsurprisingly given the strong human influence on biodiversity. From the perspective of ethnozoology, the book addresses all aspects of human connection to animals and health, from its use in traditional medicine to bioprospecting derivatives of fauna for pharmaceuticals, with expert contributions from leading researchers in the field. Draws on editors and contributors' extensive research experience and studies covering ethnozoology and ethnobiology. Covers all aspects of human-animal interaction through the lens of this emerging discipline, with coverage of both domestic and wild animal topics. Presents topics of great interest to a variety of researchers, including those in wildlife conservation, biologists, ecologists, conservationists, and domestic-related disciplines, psychologists, sociologists.

Thoughtful Foragers Steven J. Mithen, 1990-06-29. Thoughtful Foragers is about hunter-gatherer decision making. The author explores the implications of the human mind as a product of biological evolution for the way in which humans solve foraging problems. He draws on studies from ethology, psychology, and ethnography prior to turning his attention to prehistoric hunter-gatherers. He attempts to construct explanations for patterns in the archaeological record by an explicit focus on decision making by individuals. Thoughtful Foragers will appeal to specialists in European prehistory as well as to those interested in archaeological theory and method. It makes some very significant advances which will be of real importance for the field of evolutionary theory in relation to human evolution and the evaluation of human social systems.
