

More Data, More Movement, Fewer Errors

By Karen Dinebeck

and Strategy, McKesson

Having the best, most updated information on customers is a priority for virtually every business. In the homecare industry, that information can be critically important, even life-saving.

These days, more patient information is being exchanged due to care transitions, care coordination efforts and new payer models like accountable care organizations (ACOs). Fortunately, technology providers are stepping up with health information exchanges (HIEs) that make sharing information easier, resulting in smoother data flow and lower risk of error.

Through HIEs, clinicians can place diagnostic orders that are electronically routed to the proper hospital department or homecare provider. Any test results and all visit documentation, including the order ID and the patient ID, are electronically returned to the clinician's EMR. As manual procedures and handoffs are eliminated, the potential for error is greatly reduced.

HIEs can help home health providers manage patient identity, patient consent and privacy rules and clinical terminology mapping across disparate systems.

Indeed, HIE functions include medical record sharing, results delivery and exchange of continuity of care documents during care transitions. Experts believe that by ensuring a complete and comprehensive patient history is available at the point of care, HIEs can help:

- Prevent hospital readmissions
- Decrease dangerous medication errors
- Improve providers' diagnostic capabilities
- Decrease duplicate testing by ensuring a complete and comprehensive patient history

HIEs are even more important to providers moving into new models of care. ACOs, patient-centered medical homes and pay-for-performance systems depend on HIEs to deliver patient-centered care, measure
