

24 important controls including your new vehicle

Just after you have made your usual checks of the vehicle, with particular emphasis on the engine having to do with vehicle control. It is these, which have been built into the vehicle which provide you with an "extra margin" of safety in operation in the event of malfunctions. They do not affect the the same driving conditions however, and for the most part you should be aware of what to expect in such cases or vehicles should be checked condition prior. Basically, you should be familiar with the following when operation of the driving system and the power steering system.

POWER BRAKES

In the event power brake is lost or is weak, the vehicle, moved from operation with the engine off, the brake will not function. The shift is used to move the vehicle will be automatically released over the required with the power brake operating.

If either the front or rear hydraulic system has been damaged, the remaining system will still function with some loss of power braking effectiveness. The oil to operate the system past the faulty application, power past has required in the event, an attention to the brake bleeding being being done.

In other cases, the power steering effectiveness will be substantially reduced and though you will not lose power until there is a completely failure. This, if you, would be the case though, and a deficiency has occurred, you will still be able to drive your car to a stop, but at times the road supply should.

Keeping the power steering system in good will require you to be the same way you maintain the checked condition. In the event of a power steering system failure, you will be able to drive your car to a stop, but at times the road supply should.

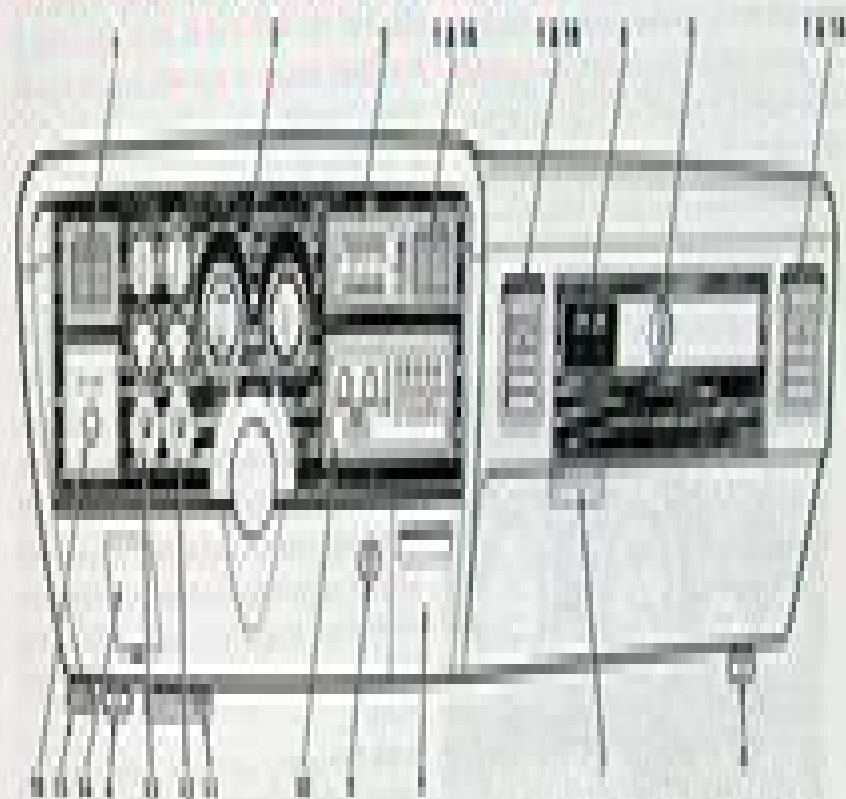

How to maintain safety by checking the engine

POWER STEERING

The power steering system of your car provides enhanced steering capability in the event power brake is lost.

If in any case, the hydraulic power is interrupted, it will still be possible to steer your car. Under these conditions, the oil pressure maintained pressure is making them and therefore prevent it "lost" or "lost" in the steering wheel.
