DIY Detroit Kimberley Kinder, 2016-03-15 For ten years James Robertson walked the twenty one mile round trip from his Detroit home to his factory job when his story went viral it brought him an outpouring of attention and support But what of Robertson s Detroit neighbors likewise stuck in a blighted city without services as basic as a bus line What they re left with after decades of disinvestment and decline is DIY urbanism sweeping their own streets maintaining public parks planting community gardens boarding up empty buildings even acting as real estate agents and landlords for abandoned homes DIY Detroit describes a phenomenon that in our times of austerity measures and market based governance has become woefully routine as inhabitants of deteriorating cities domesticate public services in order to get by The voices that animate this book humanize Detroit's troubles from a middle class African American civic activist drawn back by a crisis of conscience to a young Latina stay at home mom who has never left the city and whose husband works in construction to a European woman with a mixed race adopted family and a passion for social reform who introduces a chicken coop goat shed and market garden into the neighborhood. These people show firsthand how living with disinvestment means getting organized to manage public works on a neighborhood scale helping friends and family members solve logistical problems and promoting creativity compassion and self direction as an alternative to broken dreams and passive lifestyles. Kimberley Kinder reveals how the efforts of these Detroiters and others like them create new urban logics and transform the expectations residents have about their environments. At the same time she cautions against romanticizing such acts which are after all short term solutions to a deep and spreading social injustice that demands comprehensive change.
