Design for London Peter Bishop, Lesley Williams, 2020-12-10 Design for London was a unique experiment in urban planning design and strategic thinking. Set up in 2006 by Mayor Ken Livingstone and his Architectural Advisor Richard Rogers, the brief for the team was to think about London, what made London unique and how it could be made better. Sitting within London government but outside its formal statutory responsibilities, it was given freedom to question and challenge. The team had no power or money but it did have the licence to operate without the usual constraints of government. With introductions from Ken Livingstone and Richard Rogers, Design for London covers the tumultuous and heady period of the first decade of this century when London was a test bed for new ideas. It outlines how key projects such as the London Olympics, public space programmes, high street regeneration and greening programmes were managed, critically examines the lessons that might be learnt in strategic urban design and considers how a design agenda for London could be developed in the future.

Robert W Gehl, 2014-06-27 Robert Gehl's timely critique Reverse Engineering Social Media rigorously analyzes the ideas of social media and software engineers using these ideas to find contradictions and fissures beneath the surfaces of glossy sites such as Facebook, Google and Twitter. Gehl adeptly uses a mix of software studies, science and technology studies and political economy to reveal the histories and contexts of these social media sites. Looking backward at divisions of labor and the process of user labor, he provides case studies that illustrate how binary. Like consumer choices, hide surveillance systems that rely on users to build content for site owners who make money selling user data and that promote a culture of anxiety and immediacy over depth Reverse Engineering Social Media also presents ways out of this paradox illustrating how activists academics and users change social media for the better by building alternatives to the dominant social media sites
