The emergence of moving images and the history of cinema historically coincide with the emergence of secularism as a concept and discourse. More than historically coinciding, however, cinema and secularism would seem to have and many contemporary theorists and critics seem to assume a more intrinsic, almost ontological connection to each other. While early film theorists and critics explicitly addressed questions about secularism, religion, and cinema, once the study of film was professionalized and secularized in the Western academy, in both film studies and religious studies, explicit and critical attention to the relationship between cinema and secularism rapidly declined Indeed if one canvases film scholarship today one will find barely any works dedicated to thinking critically about the relationship between cinema and secularism Extending the recent secular turn in the humanities and social sciences Cinema and Secularism provokes critical reflection on its titular concepts Making contributions to theory philosophy criticism and history the chapters in this pioneering volume collectively interrogate the assumption that cinema is secular how secularism is conceived and related to cinema differently in different film cultures and whether the world is disenchanted or enchanted in cinema Coming from intellectually diverse backgrounds in film studies religious studies and philosophy the interdisciplinary contributors to this book cover films and traditions of thought from America Europe Africa the Middle East South Asia and East Asia In these ways Cinema and Secularism opens new areas of inquiry in the study of film and contributes to the ongoing interrogation of secularism more broadly Resources in Education ,1994-10 migrants by proposing a new non conventional form of literary writing the visa narrative genre This is a versatile and dialogic form which moves beyond strictly academic modes of migration talk and aims to re introduce a human experiential dimension in the representation of people on the move Indeed the visa narratives collected in this volume provide a unique example of testimonies and memories of migrants from different geographical locations and social positions from the student to the refugee In its political and poetic aspects this collective volume is a useful tool for understanding the complexity of migration today and the way in which national and international regulations are applied in different regions of the world Whereas our era is commonly portrayed as one of increased globalisation and freedom of movement visa narratives offer a closer insight into the experience of people trying to cross borders and reveal a substantially different reality of immobility distrust and misunderstanding
