Mark D. Meyerson, Daniel Thiery, Oren Falk, 2015-03-27 A great effusion of blood was a phrase used frequently throughout medieval Europe as shorthand to describe the effects of immoderate interpersonal violence Yet the ambiguity of this phrase poses numerous problems for modern readers and scholars in interpreting violence in medieval society and culture and its effect on medieval people Understanding medieval violence is made even more complex by the multiplicity of views that need to be reconciled those of modern scholars regarding the psychology and comportment of medieval people those of the medieval persons themselves as perpetrators or victims of violence those of medieval writers describing the acts and those of medieval readers the audience for these accounts Using historical records artistic representation and theoretical articulation the contributors to this volume attempt to bring together these views and fashion a comprehensive understanding of medieval conceptions of violence Exploring the issue from both historical and literary perspectives the contributors examine violence in a broad variety of genres places and times such as the Late Antique lives of the martyrs Islamic historiography Anglo Saxon poetry and Norse sagas canon law and chronicles English and Scottish ballads the criminal records of fifteenth century Spain and more Taken together the essays offer fresh ways of analysing medieval violence and its representations and bring us closer to an understanding of how it was experienced by the people who lived it     A History of the Church through its Buildings Allan Doig, 2020-12-10 The History of the Church through its Buildings takes the reader to meet people who lived through momentous religious changes in the very spaces where the story of the Church took shape Buildings are about people the people who conceived designed financed and used them Their stories become embedded in the very fabric itself and as the fabric is changed through time in response to changing use relationships and beliefs the architecture becomes the standing history of passing waves of humanity This process takes on special significance in churches where the arrangement of the space places members of the community in relationship with one another for the performance of the church's rites and ceremonies Moreover architectural forms and building materials can be used to establish relationships with other buildings in other places and other times Coordinated systems of signs symbols and images proclaim beliefs and doctrine and in a wider sense carry extended narratives of the people and their faith Looking at the history of the church through its buildings allows us to establish a tangible connection to the lives of the people involved in some of the key moments and movements that shaped that history and perhaps even a degree of intimacy with them Standing in the same place where the worshippers of the past preached and taught or in a space they built as a memorial touching the stone they placed or marking their final resting place holding a keepsake they treasured or seeing a relic they venerated probably comes as close to a shared experience with these people as it is possible to come Perhaps for a fleeting moment at such times their faces may come more clearly into focus Generations of Feeling Barbara H.
