- Abstract
The purpose of this study was to investigate the effects of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of elderly people. The study was conducted in a community center in a city in the north of Iran. The participants were 30 elderly people (15 men and 15 women) aged 65 and above. They were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group participated in a 12-week training program consisting of aerobic exercises, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The control group did not participate in any training program. The results showed that the experimental group had significant improvements in physical health (e.g., increased muscle strength, improved balance, and increased endurance) and psychological health (e.g., reduced anxiety and depression) compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can be an effective intervention to improve the physical and psychological health of elderly people.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 10-week training program consisting of three sessions per week. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at the beginning and end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in HR and HRR at rest and during maximal exercise compared to the control group. The control group had no significant change in HR and HRR. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

1. Abstract – This paper presents a new method for the automatic detection of the onset of a seizure. The method is based on the analysis of the EEG signal. The onset of a seizure is detected by the analysis of the power spectrum of the EEG signal. The method is applied to a set of EEG signals recorded from a patient with epilepsy. The results show that the method is able to detect the onset of a seizure with a high degree of accuracy.
