Me Carlisle Jacobson begins a teaching career in Washington D C learning as much as he is teaching Through personal experiences he learns most youths don't have the advantages he enjoyed in the horse country of northern Virginia only a day trip away from Washington but worlds away from its streets plagued by crime and nearly cut off from hopes as a child of privilege and wealth with slave owners of the antebellum south in his ancestry A hunting enthusiast since he was young Carlisle still is alarmed to learn firearms are used frequently in D C for hunting down other people including one of his students and a co worker His most frequent teacher in learning he has a lot to learn is Lucia Sanspaur a black woman with ancestry that extends to Colonial era settlers on the Delaware River including a man who performed a heroic mission during the Revolutionary War despite the white militia leaders' disdain for his skills and initiative Lucia's voice captivates Carlisle from their first encounter and her ideas propel him toward understanding that he looks at the world and other people through a sense of white wealth and privilege When he experiences first hand the violence and crime that victimize many in the area daily Carlisle's education moves into advanced studies but also comes to nearly a complete stop

The World of Raymond Chandler Raymond Chandler, 2014-12-02 Raymond Chandler never wrote a memoir or autobiography The closest he came to writing either was in and around his novels, short stories and letters There have been books that describe and evaluate Chandler's life but to find out what he himself felt about his life and work Barry Day editor of The Letters of No. 1 Coward There is much to dazzle here in just the way we expect the book is meticulous artfully structured splendid Daniel Mendelsohn The New York Review of Books has cannily deftly chosen from Chandler's writing as well as the many interviews he gave over the years as he achieved cult status to weave together an illuminating narrative that reveals the man the work the worlds he created Using Chandler's own words as well as Day's text here is the life of the man with no home a man precariously balanced between his classical English education with its immutable values and that of a fast evolving America during the years before the Great War and the changing vernacular of the cultural psyche that resulted Chandler makes clear what it is to be a writer and in particular what it is to be a writer of hardboiled fiction in what was for him another language Along the way he discusses the work of his contemporaries Dashiell Hammett James M. Cain Hemingway Fitzgerald Agatha Christie W. Somerset Maugham and others I wish said Chandler I had one of those facile plotting brains like Erle Gardner Here is Chandler's Los Angeles There is a touch of the desert about everything in California he said and about the minds of the people who live here a city he adopted and that adopted him in the post World War I period Here is his Hollywood Anyone who doesn't like Hollywood he said is either crazy or sober He recounts his own rocky experiences working in the town with Billy Wilder Howard Hawks Alfred Hitchcock and others We see Chandler's alter ego Philip Marlowe private eye the incorruptible knight with little armor who walks the mean streets in a world not made for knights If I had ever an opportunity of selecting the movie actor who would best represent Marlowe to my mind I think it would have been Cary Grant Here is Chandler on drinking his life in the end was in a race with alcohol and loneliness and here are Chandler's women the Little Sisters the dames in his fiction and in his life on writing The Long Goodbye Chandler said I watched my wife die by half inches and I wrote the best book in my agony of that knowledge I was as hollow as the places between the stars After her death Chandler led what he called a posthumous life writing fiction but more often than not his writing life was made up of letters written to women he barely knew Interwoven throughout the text are more than one hundred pictures that reveal the psyche and world of Raymond Chandler I have lived my whole life on the edge of nothing he wrote In his own words and with Barry Day's commentary we see the shape this took and the way it informed the man and his extraordinary work

A Critical Auto/Ethnography of Learning Spanish Phiona Stanley, 2016-11-10 The premise that intercultural contact produces intercultural competence underpins much rationalization of backpacker tourism and in country language education However if insufficiently problematized pre-existing constructions of cultural otherness may hinder intercultural competence development This is nowhere truer than in contexts in which wide disparities of power wealth and privilege exist and where such positionings may go unproblematized This study contributes to theoretical understandings of how intercultural competence develops through intercultural contact situations through a detailed multiple case study of three conceptually comparable contexts in which Western backpackers study Spanish in Latin America This experience often bundled with home stay volunteer work social and tourist experiences offers a rich set of empirical data within which to understand the nature of intercultural competence and the processes through which it may be developed Models of a single context free transferable intercultural competence are rejected Instead suggestions are made as to how educators might help prepare intercultural sojourners by scaffolding their intercultural reflections and problematizing their own intersectional identities and their assumptions The study is a critical ethnography with elements of autoethnographic reflection The book therefore also contributes to development of this qualitative research methodology and provides an empirical example of its application
