is clearly evident in mythological stories that recount the creation of humans by deities within ancient and contemporaneous societies across a very broad geographical environment In certain circumstances parts of selected humans can become an ideal proxy for connecting with the supernatural as demonstrated by the cult of human skulls in Near Eastern Neolithic communities as well as the cult of relics of Christian saints from the early Christian era To go deeper into this topic this volume aims to undertake a cross cultural investigation of the role played by both humans and human remains in creating forms of relationality with the divine in antiquity Such an approach will highlight how the human body can be envisioned as part of a broader materialization of religious beliefs that is based on connecting different realms of materiality in the perception of the supernatural by communities of the living
