Musical Meaning in Beethoven Robert S. Hatten, 1994 Musical Meaning in Beethoven offers a fresh approach to the interpretation and explanation of musical expressive meaning Beginning with a provocative analysis of the slow movement from Beethoven's Hammerklavier piano sonata the investigation examines the role of markedness Classical topics expressive genres and musical tropes in fostering expressive interpretation at all levels of structure Along the way close readings of movements from Beethoven's late piano sonatas and string quartets highlight less obvious expressive meanings and explain how more familiar piano meanings are consistently cued from one work to the next The model of musical meaning that Robert S Hatten puts forth is grounded in the semiotic contributions of Charles Sanders Peirce Umberto Eco and Michael Shapiro and in the theoretical and historical contributions of Leonard B Meyer Charles Rosen and Leonard Ratner In addition the latest musicological scholarship is brought to bear on a stylistic approach of considerable interpretive depth Radically departing from both the nineteenth century Formalist aesthetics of Eduard Hanslick and Formalist theories underlying tonal analysis in the twentieth century the author argues that expressive meaning is not extramusical but fundamental to the reconstruction of compositional practice and stylistic understanding even for the absolute works of Beethoven

Existential semiotics is a new paradigm in the studies of signs signification and communication This book develops its theory further starting from the continental philosophy Kant Hegel Jaspers Heidegger Arendt Sartre on one hand yet remaining also faithful to the tradition of the European semiotics particularly the Paris school From the notions of being doing and appearing the study applies them to crucial social problems of the contemporary world and moreover to various so called lesser arts like performance and gastronomy It also introduces some precursors of the approach The book represents what can be called neosemiotics the search for new theories and fields of the discipline Music and/as Process Vanessa Hawes,Lauren Redhead,2016-08-17 Music and as Process brings together ideas about music and the notion of process from different sub fields within musicology and from related fields in the creative arts as a whole These can be loosely categorised into three broad areas composition performance and analysis but work in all three of these groups in the volume overlaps into the others covers a broad range of other musicological sub fields and draws inspiration from non musicological fields Music and as Process comprises chapters written by a mix of scholars some are leaders in their field and some are newer researchers but all share an innovative and forward thinking attitude to music research often not well represented within traditional musicology Much of the work represented here started as papers or discussions at one of the Royal Musical Association RMA Music and as Process Study Group Annual Conferences The first section of the book deals with the analysis of performance and the performance of analysis The historical nature of music and the recognition of pieces as musical works in the traditional sense is questioned by the authors and is a factor in the analyses which address processes in composing performing and listening and the links between these in three very different but interlinking ways These three approaches posit new directions and territory for musical analysis The second section builds on the first framing performance and as process from the individual perspectives of the authors and their experiences as practitioners Music by Berio de Falla music by the authors and their collaborators and music composed for the authors are explored through looking at processes of interpretation and risk processes which further undermine the ontology of the musical work as traditionally understood and bring the practitioner as active agent to the foreground of an examination of musical discourse The third section encounters and questions the musical work at its inception exploring composition and as process through its encounters with performance analysis collaboration improvisation translation experimentation and cross disciplinarity Through explorations of new music the way in which practitioners relate to music frame a personal and reflective account of the creative process finally looking beyond music to musicology Music and the Arts Eero Tarasti,Paul Forsell,Richard Littlefield,2006
