Friedman, 2014-07-14 Barton Friedman demonstrates the ways in which English men of letters in the nineteenth century attempted to grasp the dynamics of history and to fashion order however fragile out of its apparent chaos The authors he discusses Blake Scott Hazlitt Carlyle Dickens and Hardy found in the French Revolution an event more compelling as a paradigm of history than their own Glorious Revolution To them the French Revolution seemed universally significant a microcosm in short For these writers maintaining the distinction between history and fiction was less important than making sense of epochal historical events in symbolic terms Their works on the French Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars occupy the boundary between history and fiction and Fabricating History advances the current lively discussion of that boundary At the same time this work explores questions about narrative strategies as they are shaped by or shape events Narratives incorporate the ideological and metaphysical preconceptions that the authors bring with them to their writing This is not to argue Professor Friedman says that historical narratives are only about the mind manufacturing them or more narrowly yet about themselves as mere linguistic constructs They illumine both the time and place they seek to re create and if by indirection the time and place of the mind thinking them into being Originally published in 1988 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 Catalogue of the New York Free Circulating Library New York.
