

Final study guide question and answers

What kind of equilibrium exists and under what conditions? Chemical equilibrium is a dynamic equilibrium between two or more states of matter, where the concentrations of the reactants and products are constant over time.

What happens if you change the conditions? Le Chatelier's principle states that if a system at equilibrium is subjected to a change in concentration, temperature, or pressure, the system will adjust itself to counteract the change and restore a new equilibrium.

What happens if you change the volume of the container? Changing the volume of a container at constant temperature and pressure will shift the equilibrium position. If the volume is increased, the equilibrium will shift towards the side with more moles of gas.

What happens if you change the temperature? Changing the temperature of a system at constant pressure and volume will shift the equilibrium position. For an exothermic reaction, increasing the temperature will shift the equilibrium towards the reactants.

What happens if you change the pressure? Changing the pressure of a system at constant temperature and volume will shift the equilibrium position. Increasing the pressure will shift the equilibrium towards the side with fewer moles of gas.

What happens if you change the concentration of the reactants or products? Changing the concentration of a reactant or product will shift the equilibrium position. Increasing the concentration of a reactant will shift the equilibrium towards the products.

What happens if you change the catalyst? A catalyst speeds up the rate at which a reaction reaches equilibrium, but it does not change the equilibrium position.

What happens if you change the initial concentrations? Changing the initial concentrations of a system at constant temperature and pressure will shift the equilibrium position.

What happens if you change the initial volume? Changing the initial volume of a system at constant temperature and pressure will shift the equilibrium position.
