Medieval Signs and Contemporary Symbolism
The author, a leading medievalist, traces the history of the sign in medieval thought, from the early medieval period to the late medieval period. The author argues that the sign is a central element of medieval thought, and that it is the sign that makes possible the medieval world. The author also argues that the sign is a central element of modern thought, and that it is the sign that makes possible the modern world. The author's argument is based on a close reading of medieval texts, and on a comparison of medieval thought with modern thought.
