Ethical and Legal Considerations in Mitigating Pandemic Disease Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Forum on Microbial Threats, 2007-06-08 In recent public workshops and working group meetings the Forum on Microbial Threats of the Institute of Medicine IOM has examined a variety of infectious disease outbreaks with pandemic potential including those caused by influenza IOM 2005 and severe acute respiratory syndrome SARS IOM 2004 Particular attention has been paid to the potential pandemic threat posed by the H5N1 strain of avian influenza which is now endemic in many Southeast Asian bird populations Since 2003 the H5N1 subtype of avian influenza has caused 185 confirmed human deaths in 11 countries including some cases of viral transmission from human to human WHO 2007 But as worrisome as these developments are at least they are caused by known pathogens The next pandemic could well be caused by the emergence of a microbe that is still unknown much as happened in the 1980s with the emergence of the human immunodeficiency virus HIV and in 2003 with the appearance of the SARS coronavirus Previous Forum meetings on pandemic disease have discussed the scientific and logistical challenges associated with pandemic disease recognition identification and response Participants in these earlier meetings also recognized the difficulty of implementing disease control strategies effectively Ethical and Legal Considerations in Mitigating Pandemic Disease Workshop Summary as a factual summary of what occurred at the workshop

Influenza Pandemic: Gaps in Pandemic Planning and Preparedness Need to be Addressed Bernice Steinhardt, 2009-12. As the current H1N1 outbreak underscores, an influenza pandemic remains a real threat to our nation. Over the past 3 years, 12 reports have been issued and 4 testimonies to Congress have been held to help the nation better prepare for a possible pandemic. While a number of actions have been taken to plan for a pandemic, including developing a national strategy and implementation plan, many gaps in pandemic planning and preparedness still remain. This statement covers six thematic areas: 1 leadership, authority, and coordination; 2 detecting threats and managing risks; 3 planning, training, and exercising; 4 capacity to respond and recover; 5 information sharing and communication; and 6 performance and accountability.
