Ideal Homes Rena Maguire, 2024-04-01 The purpose of archaeology is to reconstruct and present the past as it was lived warts and all Too often that ideal has been restricted to the affairs and structures of the great and often not so good ignoring what happened after the battles were won or lost Everyday life carried on for the vast majority of people who cooked built walls and fences herded and tended animals and made pottery metal tools and foodstuffs Each of these domestic tasks required tools and equipment and each object tells a story of the user s identity both regional and personal This volume presents a selection of worldwide studies of domestic objects and lives from Scottish ceramics to Mayan urban zones Each of these chapters demonstrate the commonalities humans share when there is no place like home enhancing archaeological knowledge of the realities of life in the past

The Archaeology of Celtic Art D.W. Harding,2007-06-11 More wide ranging both geographically and chronologically than any previous study this well illustrated book offers a new definition of Celtic art Tempering the much adopted art historical approach D W Harding argues for a broader definition of Celtic art and views it within a much wider archaeological context He re asserts ancient Celtic identity after a decade of deconstruction in English language archaeology Harding argues that there were communities in Iron Age Europe that were identified historically as Celts regarded themselves as Celtic or who spoke Celtic languages and that the art of these communities may reasonably be regarded as Celtic art This study will be indispensable for those people wanting to take a fresh and innovative perspective on Celtic Art

Redefining Irishness in a Coastal Maine City, 1770-1870 Kay Retzlaff,2021-11-18

Redefining Irishness in a Coastal Maine City 1770 1870 Bridget s Belfast examines how Irish immigrants shaped and reshaped their identity in a rural New England community Forty percent of Irish immigrants to the United States settled in rural areas Achieving success beyond large urban centers required distinctive ways of performing Irishness Class status and gender were more significant than ethnicity Close reading of diaries newspapers local histories and public papers allows for nuanced understanding of immigrant lives amid stereotype and the nineteenth century evolution of a Scotch Irish identity

Rewriting History Dennis Harding,2020-01-09 In Rewriting History Dennis Harding addresses contemporary concerns about information and its interpretation His focus is on the archaeology of prehistoric and early historic Britain and the transformation over two centuries and more in the interpretation of the archaeological heritage by changes in the prevailing political social and intellectual climate Far from being topics of concern only to academics the way in which seemingly innocuous issues such as cultural diffusion or social reconstruction in the remote past are studied and presented reflects important shifts in contemporary thinking that challenge long accepted conventions of free speech and debate Some issues are highly controversial such as the proposals for the Stonehenge World Heritage sites Others challenge long held popular myths like the deconstruction of the Celts and by extension the Picts Some traditional tenets of scholarship have yet remained unchallenged such as the classical definition of civilization itself Why should it matter Are the shifting attitudes of successive generations not symptomatic of healthy and vibrant debate Are there grounds for believing that current changes are of a more disquieting character denying the basic assumptions of rational argument and freedom of enquiry that have been the foundation of western scholarship since the Enlightenment Re writing History offers Harding s personal evaluation of these issues which will resonate not only with practitioners and academics of archaeology but across a wide range of disciplines facing similar concerns
