Red Rock Thomas Nelson Page, 2024-11-23 The old Gray plantation Red Rock lay at the highest part of the rich rolling country before it rose too abruptly in the wooded foothills of the blue mountains away to the westward As everybody in the country knew who knew anything it took its name from the great red stain as big as a blanket which appeared on the huge boulder in the grove

beside the family grave yard at the far end of the Red Rock gardens And as was equally well known or equally well believed which amounted almost to the same thing that stain was the blood of the Indian chief who had slain the wife of the first Jacquelin Gray who came to this part of the world the Jacquelin who had built the first house at Red Rock around the fireplace of which the present mansion was erected and whose portrait with its piercing eyes and fierce look hung in a black frame over the mantel and used to come down as a warning when any peril impended above the house The bereft husband had exacted swift retribution of the murderer on that very rock and the Indian s heart blood had left that deep stain in the darker granite as a perpetual memorial of the swift vengeance of the Jacquelin Grays This at least was what was asserted and believed by the old negroes and perhaps by some of the whites too a little And if the negroes did not know who did So Jacquelin often pondered Steve Allen who was always a reckless talker however used to say that the stain was nothing but a bit of red sandstone which had out cropped at the point where that huge fragment was broken off and rolled along by a glacier thousands of years ago far to the northward but this view was to the other children s minds clearly untenable for there never could have been any glacier there glaciers as they knew from their geographies being confined to Switzerland and the world having been created only six thousand years ago The children were well grounded by their mothers and Miss Thomasia in Bible history Besides there was the picture of the Indian killer in the black frame nailed in the wall over the fireplace in the great hall and one could not go anywhere in the hall without his fierce eyes following you with a look so intent and piercing that Mammy Celia was wont to use it half jestingly as a threat effectual with little Jacquelin when he was refractory that if he did not mind the Indian killer would see him and come after him How often Mammy Celia employed it with Jacquelin and how severe she used to be with tall reckless Steve because he scoffed at the story and to tease her threatened with appropriate gesture to knock the picture out of the frame and see what was in the secret cabinet behind it What would have happened had Steve carried out his threat Jacquelin as a boy quite trembled to think for though he admired Steve his cousin above all other mortals as any small boy admires one several years his senior who can ride wild horses and do things he cannot do this would have been to engage in a contest with something supernatural and not mortal Still he used to urge Steve to do it with a certain fascinating apprehensiveness that made the chills creep up and down his back

It examines the 1961 case of African American working class self defense advocate Mae Mallory who traveled from New York to Monroe North Carolina to provide support and weapons to the Negroes with Guns Movement. Accused of kidnapping a Ku Klux Klan couple, she spent thirteen months in a Cleveland jail facing extradition. African American women radical activists Ethel Azalea Johnson of Negroes with Guns, Audrey Proctor Seniors of the banned New Orleans NAACP, the Trotskyist Workers World Party, Ruthie Stone and Clarence Henry Seniors of Workers World founded the Monroe Defense Committee to support Mallory. Mae's daughter Pat, aged sixteen, also participated and they all bonded as family. When the case ended, they joined the Tanzanian, Grenadian, and Nicaraguan World Revolutions. Using her unique vantage point as Audrey Proctor Seniors's daughter, Paula Marie Seniors blends personal accounts with theoretical frameworks of organic intellectual, community feminism and several other theoretical frameworks in analyzing African American radical women's activism in this era. Essential biographical and character narratives are combined with an analysis of the social and political movements of the era and their historical significance. Seniors examines the link between Mallory Johnson and Proctor Seniors's radical activism and their connections to national and international leftist human rights movements and organizations. She asks the underlying question: Why did these women choose radical activism and align themselves with revolutionary governments linking Black human rights to world revolutions. Seniors's historical and personal account of the era aims to recover Black women radical activists' place in history. Her innovative research and compelling storytelling broaden our knowledge of these activists and their political movements. Child of Many Rivers Lucy Fischer-West, 2005 Lucy Fischer West knows the power of birthplace and of borders and rivers. Her memoir begins with the story of her parents: one reared in Germany, the other in Mexico, and how they found each other on the Texas-Mexico border. Fischer West's own journeys take her from her birth in the Hudson River Valley to her upbringing on both sides of the Rio Grande, across the Atlantic to Scotland and then France, and finally to India's River Ganges, halfway around the world from the El Paso barrio where she grew up. Hers is an ordinary life made extraordinary by its path and by the people who, having touched and enriched her life, stay with her as nurturing to her spirit as the rivers that help her mark time. BOOK JACKET The Dahlia Bakery Cookbook Tom Douglas, Shelley Lance, 2024-04-16 New York Times Bestseller and James Beard Award Nominee Warning: The mouthwatering photos and evocative prose in this book may induce a baking frenzy.
