Finin, Steven Willmott, 2006-03-30 There is a growing interest in the use of ontologies for multi agent system applications On the one hand the agent paradigm is successfully employed in those applications where autonomous loosely coupled heterogeneous and distributed systems need to interoperate in order to achieve a common goal On the other hand ontologies have established themselves as a powerful tool to enable knowledge sharing and a growing number of applications have benefited from the use of ontologies as a means to achieve semantic interoperability among heterogeneous distributed systems. In principle, ontologies and agents are a match made in heaven that has failed to happen. What makes a simple piece of software an agent is its ability to communicate in a social environment to make autonomous decisions and to be proactive on behalf of its user. Communication ultimately depends on understanding the goals, preferences, and constraints posed by the user. Autonomy is the ability to perform a task with little or no user intervention, while proactiveness involves acting autonomously with no need for user prompting. Communication, but also autonomy and proactiveness, depend on knowledge. The ability to communicate depends on understanding the syntax, terms, and structure, and the semantics of a language. Ontologies provide the terms used to describe a domain and the semantics associated with them. In addition, ontologies are often complemented by some logical rules that constrain the meaning assigned to the terms. These constraints are represented by inference rules that can be used by agents to perform the reasoning on which autonomy and proactiveness are based.

web these are notes for the lecture course differential geometry i given by the second author at eth zurich h in the fall semester 2017 they are based on a lecture course1 given by the rst author at the university of wisconsin madison in the fall semester 1983 one can distinguish extrinsic differential geometry and intrinsic differential geometry web feb 20 2016 differential geometry i please note that this page is old check in the vvz for a current information contents this course is devoted to differentiable manifolds we begin by studying their differentiable functions maps and the rank theorem

eth d math differentialgeometrie ii - Feb 26 2022 web jun 2 2016 prerequisites manifolds and tangent bundles as taught e g in the differential geometry i course during the fall semester 2015 contents in this course we will define riemannian metrics on smooth manifolds and use them to study geodesics we also study derivatives of vector fields with respect to each other leading to the notion of connection
