November 2013 Economics Environment:

The 2010 Pakistan Floods: Environmental and Economic Impact, 2015-04-15 Pakistan is a developing country of the Monsoon Asia with dense concentration of population in the plain areas of the Indus and other rivers. Due to its unique geographical setting it is prone to various natural disasters including floods. There is a whole trail of death and destruction left behind by devastating floods. But the 2010 floods in the country were unprecedented because of their vast areal coverage, loss of thousands of lives and large scale destruction. This study is an analysis of the impact of the 2010 floods on the environment and economy of Pakistan. The study begins with the environmental characteristics of the study area to understand the drainage water availability and flooding patterns in different parts of the country. Then a study of the flood history of Pakistan has been undertaken to identify possible causes of floods, rescue and management operations and preparedness for the future. The immediate damage and losses to the environment and economy have been separately studied, followed by the impact of the floods resulting from widespread damages to the different sectors of the economy and environment. The study reveals that the floods had a severe impact on the habitat ecology and lives of thousands of animals in the country. The actual impact on the environment was so vast and far reaching that it is difficult to comprehend and express it in numerical terms. Therefore in the study it has also been argued that loss of buildings, infrastructure and agriculture is actually a loss of environment. All sectors of the economy were affected by the floods, but agriculture, housing and transport and communication sectors were severely hit and had brought the whole country to a standstill. Rescue and rehabilitation efforts carried out with the help of international cooperation achieved some degree of success. But for the future, Pakistan has to take many physical, organisational and technological measures to deal effectively with natural disasters including floods. There are many lessons to be learnt from the disastrous 2010 floods and hopefully this study will be useful in that direction.

Environmental Challenges and Governance, Sacchidananda Mukherjee, Debashis Chakraborty, 2015-03-02. The economies located in East South and Southeast Asia have witnessed an interesting growth sustainability trade off over the last decades. While growth considerations have paved ways for deepened ties with growing trade, investment waves and increasing population pressure necessitated exploitation of hitherto unutilized natural resources, focus on environmental sustainability has been a recent consideration. The growth impetus still playing a key role in these economies, it becomes imperative that the countries effectively address the key sustainability concerns e.g. air and water pollution, land degradation, loss of biodiversity, climate change issues like CO₂ emissions etc. But how prepared is the governance mechanism of these countries covering not only the legislative and administrative framework but also involvement of the judiciary, presence of spirited civil society and active engagement of stakeholders in policy framing dialogues to rise up to these challenges? The book seeks an answer to this question through the environmental governance mechanism and natural resource conservation policies in three vibrant regions within Asia. A holistic development dimension of sustainable development path emerges through

Ecological economics C.M. van der Heide,W.J.M. Heijman,J.H.J. Schaminee,2025-07-21 A textbook about the nature of economics and the economics of nature Is economic growth the cause of or the solution for biodiversity loss Why do we keep drilling for oil and gas when green energy sources are cheaper And is it possible to protect nature without government intervention The answer to these and other questions lies in economic knowledge But in an age when the boundaries between nature and society are becoming increasingly vague ecology and economics are still worlds apart Not only should economists find out more about ecology ecologists should acquire a better understanding of economic principles and concepts from Adam Smith s invisible hand to the Gini coefficient and from diminishing marginal utility to the Hedonic Pricing method The aim of this book is to provide students with knowledge and an understanding of economic science and to offer them a mindset for tackling the important ecological issues of our time The book demonstrates that economic theories are sometimes part of an ecological problem but can also offer valuable insights in the search for a solution The textbook is intended for use on ecology courses at institutes for professional education and on science courses A strange combination at first glance but having read this book I am convinced of the inextricable link between ecology and economics This book is an eye opener not just for professional and science students but also for policymakers and land managers My interest increased with every page and my knowledge about the interfaces and connections between two interesting disciplines grew considerably Hans van Rooijen Former director of Woodland and Nature Conservation course Hogeschool Van Hall Larenstein the Netherlands Old fashioned administrators and economists have a tendency to regard economics and ecology as counter forces And many nature conservationists don t think that nature should be discussed in terms of economic utility In all honesty both visions are fairly blinkered It goes without saying that nature has a value in itself which is why Natuurmonumenten has worked in this area for more than 110 years But nature also has economic significance and needn t be an obstacle to economic development It can even be an economic multiplier The thinking around synergies between economics and ecology must be intensified to make the world a better place This book can only help Marc van den Tweel Chief Executive Natuurmonumenten Dutch conservation organisation the Netherlands
