Metaphysa caryophylli, collected in a first year wheat field, 1950, naturally was introduced without its sufficient knowledge by thoughtless amateur collectors for local Metaphysa investigations. This change in its communication was the consequence of incorrect and grossly false statements and opinions, and thus, of false scientific information. This wrong composed image of Metaphysa caryophylli is contained in considerable insect publications, including the last communication of 1951. These errors in dealing with Metaphysa are an obstacle to systematic work in collecting or breeding Metaphysa species for biological or basic researches and cause of big mistakes within some insect research. The given page, the different Metaphysa species specifically collected (1951) and studied, being already checked, make this year famous in the history of insect research.
