The Foreign Debt of English Literature Thomas George Tucker, 2020-09-28 A just appreciation of any modern European literature is not to be derived from the study of that literature alone Not one has grown up spontaneously and independently from the soil of the national genius Some seeds at least have come from elsewhere Often whole forms of writing have been transplanted bodily We must particularly recognize these truths when dealing with English literature The basis of the English mind is chiefly Teutonic in some measure Celtic If the English genius had been left to itself to develop its spiritual and intellectual creations in its own way English literature would have been a very different thing in both substance and form But in reality English literary history is the story of the Teutonic and Celtic tendencies corrected and clarified and the Teutonic and Celtic invention immensely assisted by influences and ideas flowing in from other sources There have been large ingraftings from other stocks either partially kindred or altogether alien from Greeks Romans Italians French Spaniards Germans as well as from Hebrews and other Orientals All sound study is comparative We must place other literatures beside our own if we desire to appraise rightly our national genius its capacities and its creations We find our English writers composing their works in certain forms and giving expression to a certain range of ideas How came they to employ these particular forms of creation How did they arrive at these particular ideas How is it with other nations Have they built upon the same lines and with the same materials or how is it with them Have we borrowed from them or they from us If there have been borrowings when and in what measure did they occur Looking back over the changes of spirit and form which our poetry for example has undergone we shall encourage altogether false notions of the causes of such changes unless we see how every now and then a shower of new ideas a stream of new light has come in from abroad Most readers know in some vague way that Chaucer avows or betrays his debts to France and Italy that Shakespeare did not invent his own plots but borrowed from Italians from Plautus from Plutarch and others that Milton was steeped in the Greek Latin and Italian classics But we want to know more than this We want to perceive with some definiteness how far the whole course of English literature has been enriched by tributary streams and what sort of waters they brought It would be instructive to draw a diagram of our literary history to liken it to the course of a river and to picture its various fountain heads and tributaries pouring in their several quotas at their several times In all modern literatures there is a large proportion which is unoriginal to them Milton has been mentioned already Those who read only English works find Milton full of nobility of thought and imagery Yet before Milton produced his greater poems he had read re read and deliberately steeped himself in the literature of Greece Rome modern Italy and France Precisely how much of Milton is made up of Homer Euripides Virgil Dante Ariosto and other predecessors can only be known to such as have those authors at their finger ends Shelley again is commonly regarded as one of the most daringly original of English writers Yet Shelley s mind was an amalgam of himself Homer Euripides Plato Virgil Dante Calderon Goethe and this once more is but another way of saying that it had incorporated the genius of generations of Greeks Romans Spaniards Italians and Germans We cannot therefore arrive at the true genius of Milton or of Shelley or speak understandingly of their originality until we have surveyed those other literatures and their relations with our own Let us indeed claim with a proper national pride that the influence of English literature of our Shakespeare our Bacon our Locke our Byron upon foreign writers has been profound Her debt to modern literature has been repaid by England and at least in the influence of Shakespeare more than repaid But with that question we are not here concerned

Gedenkschriften Van Anton Reinhard Falck Herman Theodoor Colenbrander, 1913 Eline Vere Louis Couperus, 1940 The Battle of Gettysburg: The Country, The Contestants, The Results William C. Storrick, 2020-09-28 It is difficult to present a great battle with sufficient detail to please both the student of tactics and the average reader If the visitor is not satisfied with the brief outline here presented he is recommended to read further in the books listed and especially to employ a guide without whose trained and supervised services the best manual is inadequate The reader in search of romance is recommended to the successive Incidents of the Battle as herein presented According to official records the Gettysburg campaign of 1863 began on June 3rd and ended on August 1st No effort will be made to describe the movements counter movements and fifty minor engagements

that occurred before the armies crossed the Mason and Dixon's line and finally concentrated at Gettysburg where they engaged in battle on July 1st 2nd and 3rd. It is necessary however that the visitor should understand the approach to the field. On June 3rd the Union Army called the Army of the Potomac lay at Falmouth Va on the north side of the Rappahannock River. Major General Joseph Hooker in command. The Confederate Army called the Army of Northern Virginia occupied the south bank with headquarters at Fredericksburg. General Robert E Lee in command. Both armies were resting after the major engagement at Chancellorsville in which the Confederates were victorious. The Army of the Potomac was made up of seven infantry and one cavalry corps. It numbered at the time of the battle approximately 84 000. The Army of Northern Virginia was made up of three infantry corps and one division of cavalry. It numbered at the time of the battle about 75 000. Following the text is a roster of officers which should be consulted both for an understanding of the battle and because of the obligation to honor brave men. During the month of May General Lee visited Richmond to discuss with the Confederate government various plans involving political and military considerations. Up to this time the South had won the major victories but her resources both in men and sinews of war were diminishing and a prolonged conflict would be disastrous. It was decided that the army should invade the North via the Shenandoah and Cumberland valleys with Harrisburg as an objective. This route not only afforded a continuous highway but put the army in a position to threaten Baltimore Philadelphia and Washington from the north. The Blue Ridge Mountains to the east would screen the advance and the rich agricultural section would furnish supplies of food and forage. The time was propitious. General Lee's army was in the prime of condition. The North was discouraged by losses distrustful of Lincoln weary of war. The South believed that one great victory would assure her the friendliness of the leading powers of Europe. Her independence once acknowledged she could import the materials of war and the necessities of life which she lacked. It was thought certain that at the prospect of invasion the North would withdraw troops from the siege of Vicksburg then being conducted by General Grant. With high hopes the march was begun. On June 3rd Lee put his army in motion northward with Ewell's Corps preceded by Jenkins and Imboden's Cavalry in the advance followed by Longstreet and lastly by Hill. Longstreet moved on the east side of the Blue Ridge in order to lead Hooker to believe that Washington would be threatened. On reaching Snicker's Gap he crossed the Ridge into the Shenandoah Valley and followed Hill who was now in advance. The great army was strung out from Fredericksburg Va on the south to Martinsburg W Va on the north with the cavalry division under Stuart guarding the gaps along the Blue Ridge. Since 1863 the population of Gettysburg has increased from 2 000 to 5 500. After driving out Union forces stationed at Winchester under Milroy Lee's Army crossed the Potomac at Williamsport and Shepherdstown on June 23rd 24th and 25th and advanced northward unopposed through the Cumberland Valley toward Harrisburg.
