Sylvia Ashton Warner novelist and educationist was extraordinarily famous in the 1960s She maintained that young children best learn to read and write when they produce their own vocabulary especially sex words like kiss and fear words like ghost Educators lauded her Her autobiographical novels about teaching in remote schools and being culturally abandoned in a remote country New Zealand attained enormous international popularity in both literary and educational circles But she had an intensely ambivalent relationship with the land of her birth Despite receiving many accolades in New Zealand she claimed to have been rejected and persecuted by her homeland In her darkest moments she railed against New Zealand and New Zealanders even stating in one television interview I m not a New Zealander This is the first book to make Sylvia Ashton Warner s passionately difficult relationship with New Zealand its central focus Its contributors argue that rather than stultifying her the country she decried produced Sylvia and her work In addition infant schooling in New Zealand in the post war years was relatively radical and progressive and education officials seemed to welcome Sylvia s ideas about literacy The edited collection includes chapters by Maori teachers and others who worked with Sylvia as well as recollections of her son Elliot Henderson It reprints her Teaching Scheme that was originally published in New Zealand in the 1950s And it celebrates her novels as brilliant and angry evocations of life in the wildness of New Zealand Death in Holy Orders P.
