Klopsteg,1987 The Composite Bow Mike Loades,2016-08-25 An ancient design emerging from Central Asia in the second millennium BC the composite bow was adopted by a staggering variety of cultures from nomadic tribal peoples such as the Huns Turks and Mongols to mighty empires such as the Romans Byzantines Persians Arabs and Chinese Offering high power and portability the composite bow was an ideal cavalry weapon though it was also used by infantry in open battle and as a siege weapon In this important study an expert on Eastern military technology tells the story of this extraordinary piece of military hardware how it was made and how various cultures developed differing tactics for using it He explains why the composite bow achieved such stunning successes and how it endured as a weapon of choice for thousands of years The Bow Henry Saint-George,1922 BOW HENRY. and had poor armor The Kazakhs enemies were mostly well equipped armies of neighboring settled nations Therefore the Kazakhs had to develop their own type of the medieval cavalry light mostly unarmored horseback archers also armed with lances spears blunt weapons and sabers and capable of skirmishes and melee fighting This type of cavalry usually engaged in guerilla like wars and proven to be successful over a few centuries It was later adopted by Bashkirs Kalmyks Turkmens and even the Russian Cossacks
