

The background of the book cover is a detailed still life painting. It features a large, light-colored wooden bowl with a handle, resting on a dark, textured surface. In the foreground, there are various spices: a pile of dark, small seeds or grains, a pile of cinnamon sticks, and a small pile of dried, curled spices. A wooden spoon is also visible, resting on the surface. The overall lighting is warm and dramatic, highlighting the textures of the wood and spices.

Plants and Human Conflict Eran Pichersky, 2018-07-27 Perhaps the least appreciated dramatis personae in human history are plants Humans like all other animals cannot produce their own food as plants do through photosynthesis and must therefore acquire organic material for survival and growth by eating plants or by eating other animals that eat plants Humans depend on plants not only as a food source but also as building and clothing materials and as sources of medicines psychoactive substances spices pigments and more With plants being such valuable resources it is therefore not surprising that plants have been involved in practically all violent conflicts among different human societies Ironically plants have also been the source of materials to construct weapons or weapon parts Wars have always constituted a large part of human history and the overall theme of this book is that to understand the history of violent human conflict we need to understand what specific materials plants make that people find so useful and worth fighting over and what roles such plant products have played in specific conflicts To do so Plants and Human Conflict begins with a chapter explaining the basic biological facts of the interdependence between plants and humans and the subsequent seven chapters describe the physical and chemical properties of specific plant products demonstrating how the human need for these products has led to wars as well as contributed to the prosecution of wars These chapters recount some well known and some lesser known historical events in which plants have played a central role This book uniquely combines the modern scientific knowledge of plants with the human history of war introducing readers to a new paradigm that will make them reconsider their understanding of human history as well as to bring about a greater appreciation of plant biology

Tasting Difference Gitanjali G. Shahani, 2020-05-15 Tasting Difference examines early modern discourses of racial cultural and religious difference that emerged in the wake of contact with foreign peoples and foreign foods from across the globe Gitanjali Shahani reimagines the contact zone between Western Europe and the global South in culinary terms emphasizing the gut rather than the gaze in colonial encounters From household manuals that instructed English housewives how to use newly imported foodstuffs to the spiced Indian air of A Midsummer Night's Dream from the repurposing of Othello as an early modern pitchman for coffee in ballads to the performance of disgust in travel narratives Shahani shows how early modern genres negotiated the allure and danger of foreign tastes Turning maxims such as We are what we eat on their head Shahani asks how did we the colonized subjects become what you the colonizing subjects eat How did we become alternately the object of fear and appetite loathing and craving Shahani takes us back several centuries to the process by which food came to be inscribed with racial character and the racial other came to be marked as edible showing how the racializing of food began in an era well before chicken tikka masala and Balti cuisine Bringing into conversation critical paradigms in early modern studies food studies and postcolonial studies she argues that it is in the writing on food and eating that we see among the earliest configurations of racial difference and it is experienced both as a different taste and as a taste of difference European Perceptions of Islam and America from Saladin to George W. Bush P.

O'Brien, 2008-12-22 This book considers European perceptions of their rivals throughout history from the Islamic civilization between the first Crusade in 1095 and the final Ottoman siege of Vienna in 1683 to the United States of America from independence in 1776 until the present and investigates Europe's capacity to lead the world Archaeology of Food: An Encyclopedia Karen Bescherer Metheny, Mary C.
